SHERMAN, TEXAS, Dec. 16, 1872. SEDALLA DEMOCRAT:—I promised to give you a stray item occasionally from these parts—the shady side of paradise—and will to-day to the imade from the day in the imade from the image. Northern Texas, just now is attractsule world. Speculators of every class and enterprise have been allight that have gone abroad through all improbable that the M. K. & T. the medium of the press. The sleek, sagscious gambler, and like ilk, will place. Unless this is done that line cannot compete with the Texas Constant of the original state of the control one of these "fast towns." But we aust begin at the beginning. After leaving Schulin nothing worthy of note occurred until about 9 o'lock on the following morning when we were startled by the musical (?) voice of the conductor in he sung out: Southern terminus of the M. K. & surged from car to see-what? a train of some twenty-five box cars standing on a side track, and fixed up for express and freight offices, restaurants, dinning rooms, saloons, should one and a shalf miles from Red River. The track, however is completed to the bridge—and it has been reported that construction as it is damp and chilly, and whon a train has yet crossed on the Red River bridge. It was some time legiste the stages on the Red River bridge. It was some time being the minutize of Sherman, the society, and some few statistics—until then could start for Denison and Sherman, such each of the river.
