

Jeff Morrical

Author • Accountant • Business Owner • Public Speaker

I have been involved in two different professions, law enforcement and accounting. I have learned that ethical standards of these two professions are similar. I came to the realization that ethics doesn't apply to only a few professions, but to all professions.

Since this realization, I have been speaking to professional groups about the impact, value, and effects that ethics imposes upon our lives. It is my firm belief that ethics applies from front line employees to boards of organizations. Having me speak to your organization, I will emphasize the importance of ethics upon your industry.

I hold a master's and bachelor's degree in accounting and a bachelor's in law enforcement justice administration. After graduating from Western Illinois University, I founded JRM Financial Corporation. I have written several published case studies about ethical dilemmas and behavior.
