(Food for thought)

Gospel: John 10: 11-18.

The imagery of sheep and shepherd is very touching and significant in a biblical setting. But, in our own time, it has become less appealing, less applicable. We certainly recognize that we need the love and guidance of Jesus. We realize that He died for us, that He knows us personally, and that He is always with us and concerned for our safety and well being.

The shepherds of our Church still need very much to radiate the personal love and compassion of Jesus. But so also do the people of God. Shepherds need to lead, to guide; but the people of God need to be invited, not threatened; they need ministers who are in touch with the real circumstances of life. They need models of faith and hope, models who can lead them along the paths of prayer and spirituality, models who can inspire trust and courage in the face of suffering and trial.

They need most of all, fellow travelers on the faith journey who can not only offer healing, comfort and support in the name and spirit of Jesus, but also recognize their own failures and weaknesses and humbly seek forgiveness and reconciliation.

"I am the good shepherd, and I know mine and mine know me, just as the Father knows me and I know the Father; and I will lay down my life for the sheep."

Jesus says: "My sheep hear my voice; I know them and they follow me. I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish." If we really believe this, if we really belong to Jesus, if it shows in our words and actions and choices - then we are guaranteed what Jesus has promised: life that never ends, life without tears, hunger or thirst.
