

Jenna Robinson Professional Biography

Jenna Robinson is an aerospace policy graduate intern for the Arizona chapter of the Aerospace States Association who assists in policy assessment and provides advocacy education and support on aerospace policy to Arizona state legislators. Additionally, Jenna is a candidate in the Masters of Science and Technology Policy program at Arizona State University.

Before transitioning to space policy, Jenna pursued her B.S. in Astrobiology and Biogeosciences and her B.A. in French. During that time, she studied the composition and structure of the atmosphere of Mars and exoplanets.

Combining her scientific knowledge with her love of science policy, Jenna hopes to pursue a career in space policy with a focus on equitable governance and sustainable resource management practices.
