FAA Hazardous Materials Policy

Federal law forbids the carriage of hazardous materials aboard aircraft in your luggage or on your person. A violation can result in five years' imprisonment and penalties of $250,000 or more (49 U.S.C. 5124). Hazardous materials include explosives, compressed gases, flammable liquids and solids, oxidizers, poisons, corrosives and radioactive materials. Examples: Paints, lighter fluid, fireworks, tear gases, oxygen bottles, and radio-pharmaceuticals. There are special exceptions for small quantities (up to 70 ounces total) of medicinal and toilet articles carried in your luggage and certain smoking materials carried on your person. For further information contact your airline representative.

Please refer to the full list of TSA prohibited items at <http://www.tsa.gov/traveler-information/prohibited-items>.

Identification Requirements for Travel:

- Please familiarize yourself with the following identification requirements for travel.
- All customers traveling domestically are required to present proper identification upon flight check-in and when clearing security.
- It is the passenger's responsibility to provide the correct documents and failure to do so may result in being denied boarding for the flight.
- Regrettably, we are unable to refund unused flights, hotel, or features because of denied boarding situations.

Domestic Passengers: All domestic passengers 18 years of age or older are required to present one form of government issued photo identification (such as a valid driver's license).

Foreign Passengers: Foreign passengers should visit their local consulate for travel requirements (a VISA or other written verification may be necessary). Nationals of other countries, residing in the U.S. with a Resident Alien Card, see the State Department's consular website at <http://www.travel.state.gov>.
