

SUNDAY MORNING MEDITATION

All too often our churches fall short of the New Testament pattern. Some have a form of godliness but are quite deficient in supernatural power. At another extreme many churches major in spiritual experiences (some spurious) with little emphasis on godliness and truth. Are those our only choices: a form of godliness without power, or a form of power without godliness? The Restoration Movement began with the laudable goal of restoring New Testament Christianity. But the movement was born in an era of almost-Sadducean mistrust of the supernatural. Virtually all supernatural phenomena were dismissed out-of-hand. But trying to restore New Testament Christianity without the supernatural is like raising a pile of sticks without lighting them, and calling it a bonfire. Paul told the early Church: “Desire spiritual gifts; don’t quench the Spirit; don’t despise prophesying; test everything and hold fast to what is good.” (I Thess. 5:19-21; I Cor. 14:1).
