

DIAN COPPINBRITISH LITERATURE*Time: 2nd Period, 10am-11:30am

Materials fee: $45.00 Monthly Tuition: $60.00

British Literature is a senior level course and is offered to sophomores, juniors, and seniors. Seniors, juniors, and returning students are given preference.

Description:

A Survey of British Literature is an overview of English literature from the Old English through the Modern English periods, with an examination of the Christian influence as the “thread that runs so true.” The course is designed to give students the opportunity to interact with the material in writing and in classroom discussions.

In addition to reading assignments in the text and in writing assignments, there will be one book assigned to read each month and a formal critical analysis to be written one semester.

Textbook:

British Literature (Bob Jones) The text does not need to be the new edition.

Note:

Seniors who have never taken British Literature are encouraged to enroll in this course.

Assigned Readings:

The first two books will be Heart of Darkness by Joseph Conrad and Till We Have Faces by C. S. Lewis.

About Dian Coppin’s High School Literature Classes

The literature classes are designed to enhance the student’s background in literature and to equip the student with tools for literary analysis. Students will read the works of well-known authors and works representing a variety of genres. Each Friday, the teacher will give the students reading and writing assignments for independent study, and in class each Friday, students will have the opportunity to share their observations and opinions with fellow students in teacher-directed discussions. Students will write informal and formal responses and essays and one formal literary analysis each semester. Assigned books may be checked out of the library or purchased at bookstores. Most can be found locally at our good used bookstores.
