Science

Science is another discipline in which American students fall short when compared to their global peers of the same age and grade level; therefore, the focus is on establishing the fundamentals of science at the elementary level by laying a strong foundation to prepare students for in-depth practices they will incur in middle school and high school. We use an interactive curriculum that integrates exclusive video, interactive text, digital explorations, STEM resources, and an interactive glossary. While not the focus, this subject is taught through a biblical worldview.
