Watch for more information as we go forward. We appreciate that there is a lot of interest in the building, but we do ask that people stay on the road or driveways and not go into the yard or on to the porches until we have chance to do a full evaluation of the property for your own safety.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call Laura Hoover at 622-3981.

THANK YOU

The family of Frankie Honn thanks all of her friends and family, and especially those who visited her during her last week of life, while at Marengo Memorial Hospital. Furthermore, a very special thanks goes out to the many people who came to her visitation and funeral on Sunday and Monday, June 26th and 27th, 2016. Your overwhelming support, love, and friendship is clear, as well as the message of love this sends to Frankie on her journey. So many friends have provided meals and desserts, supportive calls and encouragement, and memorial offerings, it is difficult to appropriately express our appreciation. Thank you so much for your help during this time.

FEATHERS IN THE WIND

I admit that I am a "couch potato" so if you are wondering why I am writing about television commercials, you will now understand.

Lately I have been watching the "Johnny Carson Show." You can see it at nine or ten in the evenings depending if it is a weekend or weekday. These shows were filmed twenty or thirty years ago, so I have to check back in my "old" mind to remember who some of the guests were, if they are still alive, or whatever became of them. Naturally, during the monologue, I have to remember what was going on in those years. Not always an easy task. What gives me sort of a chuckle are the commercials.

There is one for senior living I especially enjoy.

The first shot is of this long table with people playing games. Way in the front they are literally throwing dice. I sort of wonder if these people are really having a gambling set up going on in that facility.

The next picture is the best so work with me as I describe it. Think of two elderly couples walking. Naturally the man has a walker and his "perky" wife walks with him holding his arm. You know if he falls there is no way she is going to get him up, but what the heck.

I sort of wonder if that "perky" wife is trying to wrench the man's arm away from his walker and making him fall so she can go back to her game of dice.

Now, imagine a compass, one couple is coming from the "west" and the other couple is coming from the "south." They are travelling at the same speed. You, the viewer, just know that there is going to be a collision in the middle since that looks like they are going to same the point...perhaps a rendezvous."

So the question is will there be some broken hips, perhaps a love affair between one member of each couple, extra insurance, or what?

Unfortunately you never do see them ending in the middle. It is quite frustrating never to know. The next commercial tells us that a new facility (just like this) is being built in our area. Be still my heart!

The commercials go on about walk in bath tubs. I have tried one, but that is another subject.

More life insurance and of course the, ever popular, will one have enough money so they can die and be buried by their children who are probably expecting a large inheritance.

Ah such is life! Not everyone can have it as exciting when you live in a town like Homestead where there is only one street, lightning hits only our house, and once again you do not win the flower walk tour. It's all so sad.
