Jonathan Holloway: UCHS Student Passes ICDL Level 1 Certification

Congratulations to Jonathan Holloway, 11th grade student, age 16, at University City High School. Jonathan has passed ICDL Certification Level I. which tested his competency in three of the seven International Computer Driving License software categories. They are 1) Information and Communication: Using E-mail and the Internet 2) Word Processing and 3) Using the Computer and Managing Files. These three ICDL modules are recognized as the most important to United States companies and are approved as ICDL Level I Certification by the US-International Computer Driving License (ICDL-US).

Jonathan is a native Philadelphian and has a twin sister and three other sisters. He is the only boy and is the youngest sibling.

Jonathan says he is motivated by his colleague, Amir Potts, who completed ICDL Level I. and Level II. which documents competency in all seven ICDL software categories. Jonathan says "...Once my classmate and friend Amir achieved his certifications, I became determined to pass all seven ICDL Certification module exams. He says... "the METWorks After School IT Certification Prep Program is great for me because I have learned to be more focused in the computer labs and at school ...I have more confidence in taking tests and other assessments and plans to put the Certification on my resume because I believe it will open up different opportunities in the career world...". Jonathan wants to be an engineer and will continue to use the METWorks Career Prep program to assist other students, for technology related work placements and to explore different types of engineering disciplines and best schools for postsecondary engineering education.
