The teachers at Oxford School are constantly learning new ways to teach our international students and go through monthly professional development to stay informed in English Language Development. Oxford is unique because our school is all English Language Development (ELD) and most of our teachers are experienced with international students. The teachers and staff have created a safe, comfortable, and caring environment where everyone gets along and cares for each other. The relationship between students and teachers is important to creating a great learning experience. Our teachers are able to give one to one attention to each student because we are a small school. Not only do our teachers care about the students' education, but also about their lives. We are an Oxford family.

Teacher Training

- Common Core Standards for English Language Learners: national guidelines teachers must utilize in order for their students to excel to the next level.
- 21st Century Skills: students learn Critical Thinking, Collaboration and teamwork, Creativity and imagination, Problem solving.
- Project Based Learning (PBL): teaching method in which students gain knowledge and skills by working for an extended period of time to investigate and respond to an authentic, and complex question, problem or challenge.
- Sheltered Instruction Observation Protocol (SIOP): ties in with PBL and is a research-based and validated instructional model that has proven effective in addressing the academic needs of English learners.
