RV PARK & MARINA

Not everyone goes camping just for the weekend. Campgrounds have become a place where people live all year long. Due to South Carolina's moderate weather it is possible to live year-round in a campground.

Enjoy A Healthy Lifestyle

Camping year-round is associated with living a healthy lifestyle. Campers tend to spend more time outdoors in the fresh air because of the small living space inside most campers. Most campgrounds have hiking areas where residents can exercise all year long. Bicycle riding is another common form of healthy exercise and residents ride bikes in the cool evenings on the safe grounds.

Benefits

The benefits of staying in one campground year-round are many. By not moving from campground to campground you are making a smaller footprint on the earth due to using less precious fuel. The savings on gasoline means you have more money for other necessities. Less wear and tear on your RV or camper while enjoying lake front property at a fraction of the cost will make you smile as you save money. You will begin to think of the RV or camper as your SECOND home.

Considerations

Living in a small space can be challenging for some people, therefore they realize that this is their new getaway. Make sure in advance you can agree with the list of rules to follow or you might not like campground living.
