

Negroni:

A Florentine Cocktail with a rich history

Firenze 1919; The Florentine Count, Camillo Negroni, would stop for a ritual drink in a local café. One evening while having a drink there, he asked the bartender to top off his usual Americano cocktail with a bit of gin to salute to his English background. The result was a drink with the same intense, deep red color, a pleasantly dry sensation on the tongue and a unique juniper taste. From then on, Count Negroni's "Americano" became what we famously know as the "Negroni" today; three equal parts of Gin, red vermouth, Campari bitter and a slice of orange.
