Ariel married Meg, a Connecticut farmer's daughter whom he met while both were undergraduates at Brown University. Ariel and Meg live in Washington, D.C. with their two children.

Yona Sabar met Stephanie Kruger, the American-born daughter of Jeannette and Codman Kruger, in New York City. They married in 1967 and now live in Los Angeles, where Yona is a distinguished professor at UCLA and Stephanie, a social worker.

After Rifqa died giving birth to Yusef, Menashe married Arabe, who became Miryam's stepmother and gave birth to a number of boys, including Yosef.

Miryam and Rahamim, who were first cousins, had 12 children. Only six survived childhood and moved with the family to Israel. A seventh, their first-born, Rifqa, named after Miryam's mother, was kidnapped as an infant in Zakho, Iraq.
