Pr 13:5 A righteous man hateth lying: but a wicked man is loathsome, and cometh to shame.

Who can say we never have lied about something? A person might want to hide something they did – so they lie. Some fabricate stories to make themselves seem great or embellish the story (“the fish I caught was ....”) Some people tell lies to deceive others for their own gain.

It is one thing to repeat something we heard that wasn’t backed by fact; that’s why we need to make certain. It is also possible to have misunderstood what was said, and repeat it incorrectly. But when the tally comes up in the 20’s and more; that person might be a habitual liar.

When I came across the text about lying, my first thought came to President Joe Biden. Probably because of a recent article that was called to my attention. The Washington Post gave him “A Bottomless Pinocchio for Biden — and other recent gaffes” And the Washington Post is a liberal newspaper.

President Joe Biden: “Student loan forgiveness is “passed. I got it passed by a vote or two. And it’s in effect. “

It didn’t pass and it is not in effect, and it wasn’t voted upon.

President Joe Biden: “The “average federal income tax” paid by the richest Americans is “8%. ...

If you’re a cop, a teacher, a firefighter, union worker, you probably pay two to three times that.”

“The claim is dishonest and deceptive,” said Alex Muresianu, a federal policy analyst at the Tax Foundation.

President Joe Biden: “Today, the most common price of gas in America is $3.39, down from over $5 when I took office,”

The week he was inaugurated, the average price stood at $2.46, because of the impact the pandemic was having on the economy ...
So gas is about 58% more expensive now than it was in January 2021

There are at least a dozen more outright lies. He is delusional or simply a bald-face liar or he is forced to say these things by the puppeteer. (George Soros)

And God has allowed him to be the face of the most powerful nation on earth. Surely “His ways are past finding out.” – Romans 11:33.

If this is what this nation deserves; God spare us!

But in the whole world picture, isn’t this the best country with the most freedoms; freedom to worship, economically with a free market, tax costs, personal right to bear arms, and yes, I see there is infringement design on these liberties.
