

Dr. Kim Blosser is the fifth president of Lord Fairfax Community College (LFCC) and officially began serving in this capacity in February 2018. Prior to her presidency, Dr. Blosser served as LFCC's vice president of academic and student affairs. Dr. Blosser is a passionate supporter of the comprehensive community college mission. She was the first in her family to attend college and the community college is where she found her focus; and like so many other students, the community college is where she learned the skills needed to be successful in higher education. Because of her own personal experience and witnessing first-hand the difference community colleges make in students' lives, she has dedicated nearly 20 years to Virginia's Community Colleges and affirms that higher education is where she will spend the rest of her professional career.

Throughout her time working in higher education, Dr. Blosser has served in numerous roles including as an adjunct faculty member; a full-time teaching faculty; served as a program lead for the information systems technology program; was elected faculty senate chair; served as dean of math, physical sciences, and technology; served as a chief information officer; became an associate vice president overseeing instruction programs; has chaired SACSCOC reaffirmation efforts; and served as the vice president of academic and student affairs.

Statewide, Dr. Blosser serves on the General Professional Advisory Committee of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) and is a member of the Council of Presidents for Virginia's Public Colleges and Universities. She also serves as a member of the Advisory Committee on Dual Enrollment and the General Education Transfer Committee, both established by SCHEV.

Locally, Dr. Blosser is a board member of both the Luray-Page County Chamber of Commerce and the Shenandoah Valley Technology Council, a member of the Winchester Rotary Club, is a member of the Gifted and Talented Advisory Committee for Page County Public Schools, and a member of the LFCC Educational Foundation's Executive Committee for the Luray-Page County Center's Capital Campaign.

Dr. Blosser is a graduate of Page County High School. She earned a bachelor's degree in business administration and a master's degree in education from Eastern Mennonite University in Harrisonburg, Virginia. She continued to earn a master's degree in management information systems and a doctorate of education from Nova Southeastern University. Outside of her academic career, Dr. Blosser is proud to be the mother of two sons, Will and Luke. She and her husband, Patrick, reside in Page County, where she has spent many years as a member of parent-teacher organizations, volunteering at her sons' elementary school, helping coach youth sports teams, and serving on and helping fundraise for youth sports organizations.
