Nonprofit Pledges To Preserve The World of Sea Glass Through An Educational Exhibit with Help From Barbara Bush.

Successful small business owner and beach combing enthusiast, Danielle Perreault, launches a unique nonprofit, The Sea Glass Center. Set on preserving and presenting the historical, artistic and cultural significance of sea glass and beach glass through an interactive educational exhibit.

Using her extensive personal collection along with donations from fellow sea glass lovers, an extensive exhibit will be erected. Traveling through museums, educational outlets, and aquariums, this exhibit will be open to all who have a passion for the sea and it's history.

Joining her in this venture is former first lady and Kennebunk, Maine local, Barbara Bush. Mrs. Bush has pledged to donate pieces of her own personal collection of sea glass. Collected near their Presidential Compound in Kennebunk, Maine, Mrs. Bush plans on donating her pieces in the spring when she returns from Texas.

Collecting pieces from dignitaries and celebrities is not the only way The Sea Glass Center plans on building their collection. A recent appeal to the public, made through their popular Facebook page, is for sea glass with inscriptions of either Coke or Pepsi logos. These rare commercial pieces will assist in tracking the scientific and historical aspects of the sea.

Recently featured on the NBC affiliate, WCSH6, Super Girl Supper Club, The Sea Glass Journal, NASGA, and the blog Pajamas and Coffee. Future press includes the cover of The Village for the April 2014 edition. This rapidly growing nonprofit intends on becoming the unequivocal reference to all things sea glass, beach glass, and other worldly ocean treasures.
