

AGGRESSIVE ANIMALS

All of our animals residing at the shelter live in communal environments. Therefore we are not able to accept aggressive or territorial animals. This would be a safety issue for our staff and animal residents. It would also be a very stressful situation for any pet that has not been properly socialized and dislikes being around other animals or sharing their personal space.

Please remember the best way to alleviate aggressive and territorial behavior is to have your pet spayed and neutered and to provide plenty of training, exercise, and socialization opportunities.
