How to Dress a Toddler for the Cold?

Toddler winter wear should both keep your little one cozy and allow for movement. A child who's mobile needs to be able to move easily, so he/she shouldn't be so bundled up that she can't climb the playground ladder or romp in the snow.

Even if your little one has no interest in dressing or undressing herself, if she's still not fully potty-trained, you'll want to go for easy-on/easy-off clothes for your own sanity. Some specific shopping tips to focus on:

- Choose safe and easy clothing features. Snaps and zippers are really good choices for toddlers.
- Don't forget car seat safety. Even if it's freezing cold, take off your toddler's winter jacket in the car seat: It can compress in the event of an accident, creating a dangerous amount of space underneath the harness.

Celebrate Child Health Month with Healthy Habits and Activities!

Every child in Tennessee deserves to be as healthy as they can be; from the food they eat to the words they hear, kids need a lot of support, resources and opportunities to grow. The last two years have created challenges for many Tennesseans. For so many families, proper nutrition, regular exercise and even routine doctor or dental visits have gone out the window out of concern or fear of being exposed to COVID-19. Despite the global pandemic, there are ways to encourage healthy habits and activities!

MEANINGFUL VISUAL

An important part of learning social/emotional skills is for children with and without disabilities to be able to regulate and calm down. Here is a useful tool to teach children how to calm down when challenges arise.
