SPRING IS JUST AROUND THE CORNER

Oh, man, we hope so! Come get our new Dickie work jeans, still starting at $14.

Two reasons why our clothes may be better than Costco's!

1. You can try them at the store.
2. One less ferry ride to get them.

Only disadvantage is no giant hotdog & soda for $1.50.

HAVALINA!

Here I sit in my pickup in the Arizona desert thinking about my daughter Tessa's future and also what to put in this month's Hardware Herald. Along comes a wild havalina crashing in through the brush. As you can see, these mean looking desert animals can be very scary. My pup, Kelly, and I are watching safely in the truck when a woman in exercise garb appears. My first reaction is to bolt from the truck to warn the lady. As I'm opening the door, the creature approaches me at a quick trout. The last second prior to me warning the lady and making a complete ass of myself, I realized that my wild havalina is actually her very ugly dog!

Lesson learned: look twice!

ALMOST FLOWER SEASON!

Get a new Deer Grain Block #20.

Only $17.18

Put it in an area that deer will stay away from your plants...

Priceless!

SOUTHWEST WINTER FAVORITES

As you may know, for a number of years I've had the good fortune to be able to travel during the winter months. Summers on Orcas and winters in the southwest US desert states—tough to beat. Only partially jokingly, I say the winter goal is to be where there is no wind and 75°. This goal has taken me to lots of special places. Rather than try to describe these places, I'll list just a few and you can google them. Here are just a few of my favorite winter hangouts:

Slab City, CA

Felicity, CA (center of the world)

River's Bend Hot Springs, NM

Carlsbad Cavern, NM
