FALL 2019: OPTICAL OPULENCE

Stories of ornate mosaic tiles, bold Op Art, international florals, hand cut Japanese sheers, and designs that move into a new realm of luxury.

Tied together by a fluid theme of intricate design elements, detailed knitting, and bold accents of live coral, cobalt, chartreuse and rust. When experienced as a whole the collection is an exciting wonderland of optical pop and delight.

Exploration of new sock craftsmanship leads us to luxury by way of material. Fair trade cotton meets sparkling lurex threading, firmly knit wool is enhanced with the shimmer of silk, and 100% cashmere yarns, from Italy, make for the most luxuriously warm socks of the season.

This new collection exudes the very quality that is 'the art of socks'. It's a look, a feeling, an expression, and experience that could only be realized within Ozone's thrilling world of design.

In true Ozone fashion each piece is on the move, jumping to life, off the canvas, and transformed into wearable art. These optical thrills are ready to travel the world, in bold style and without limitations.

Frank Lloyd Wright admitted to only three influences: childhood kindergarten toys, an early mentor, and Japanese art- specifically Japanese woodblock prints.

The inspiration Wright found in Japanese art, and the culture that produced it, changed the entire direction of his career. And with it changed modern American architecture.

As Wright moved away from the path of typical American architecture Japan provided a revitalizing source of influence.

To pay homage to this vital source of inspiration we travel to Nara Japan where artisan spirit and the ancient tradition of sock making meets the genius of Frank Lloyd Wright. Exquisitely woven and hand cut to perfection this new collection of socks are unique pieces of art in and of themselves.
