There is no taking the America out of this American Jew

Recently, over the course of a very few days I happened to listen to a CD of an Israeli artist singing a collection of traditional Yemenite prayers, and view a film featuring home movies of a Jewish community in Greece that was totally destroyed in the Shoah.

What struck me was that the songs were indeed Jewish but also very Yemenite. And the way the Greek Jews conducted themselves was both very Jewish and very Greek. And yet, there was no escaping it: both groups were fully and completely Jewish. Thinking about it, I was struck by how truly remarkable it is to be a Jew. We represent a unique cultural reality. Wherever we live, we participate fully in two cultures. There is no taking the Yemen out of those Yemenite Jewish prayers; nor taking Greece out of the life patterns of Greek Jews. And no need to.

This is on my mind right now, because over those same few days I have been witness to some very ugly and dispiriting things in American politics. And I am in real pain. And the pain I feel is an American pain. There is no taking the America out of this American Jew. Some of our fellow Jews imagine that you can build a Jewish life that is totally cut off from American society. I find that misguided and unproductive. There is no either/or. I can't look at American life objectively, like an outsider. What happens in America, what is happening to America, touches me deeply.

Which carried me back to what I said to you on Rosh Hashanah. The election is closer now than then. As you read this there is about a month left in the campaign cycle. This is not somebody else's issue. As an American Jew—as an American; as the inheritor of Jewish values: the decisions that are made in the voting booth are about you.

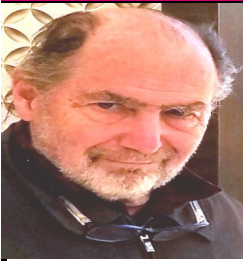

And so, as I urged you at the start of our Jewish year, I urge you again: do not sit on the sidelines. Find candidates for every office who represent your values. Contribute to them. Work for them, encourage your friends to vote and to vote their values. Especially call friends and family in states with close races. Some of you have told me you are travelling to closely contested states to knock on doors. I admire you for that. If you are not going to be out of state on election day, you can drive people to the polls. And, of course, be sure that you vote. As we have learned, every vote really does count.

I know someone is sure to ask, “since when are American elections a Jewish issue?” The answer is obvious: since Jews moved to America! For us the privilege of participating in the electoral system is a rare privilege in the long history of the Jewish people. For Jews participating in elections is, in every sense of the word, a Mitzvah. You can express our gratitude for the privilege by saying a bracha when you are in the voting booth.

B'Shalom, Rabbi Daniel Polish

A Message from President Lindsey Turner

SALUTI DALL'ITALIA! Best regards from Italy!

Wendy just sent us 5 beautiful pictures of our Sukkot celebration. One word fits best..... Fantastico! Looks like everyone had fun.

Here the weather has been quite warm and it was so the evening of Yom Kippur when I got to the Synagogue in Livorno. Outside there were two very handsome but tough looking paratroopers from the elite Folgore based here. I would have gone anyplace if two guys like that had my back! Before I went in, I started talking to a woman who said she was not going to go in tonight and was making a protest because the men had 7 large fans downstairs and the women only had 3 little ones in their gallery...

I told her I was a New Yorchese, and so if she needed any help .....we are experts at protests!

Nobody seemed to be at the door so I walked in, and bumped right into the Rabbi! I told him Shalom, Shanah Tovah, and then in Italian I told him I did not understand much Hebrew, so, could he give me the Kol Nidre in Italian. He gave me a book, actually two, which were written in Livorno and I believe, in the Livornese dialect. One of the things I learned, was the reason that for Kol Nidre, they parade around the 13 beautifully decorated Torahs that they have. Each Torah represents a different aspect of G-d's ability to forgive.

I tried to follow the service, but, as I lost ground, I let myself be overtaken by the beauty of the melodic Sephardic chant and the beauty of this Synagogue. This temple was rebuilt after the old temple from 1604 was destroyed during War World II. This beautiful new temple was inaugurated in 1962 by Rabbi Elio Toaff, a friend of Nicky's Grandfather, to evoke the feeling of the tent of the ark in the desert. The marble Bimah uses Carrara marble from the old temple that the allied bombs didn't crash. The Temple's ark which holds all these magnificent Torahs is itself a sculptural masterpiece... well worth a trip to Google to see pictures or a call to Lindsey to arrange a tour of Jewish Tuscany.

However, all of this splendor would have been enriched by the moving music that I am sure all of you experienced in our synagogue in little old LaGrange.

Love to everyone and ... watch out ... I am coming back ...

*B'Shalom,
Lindsey*

A Message from Sue Marcoe Education Enrichment Coordinator

EXCITING THINGS HAPPENING IN RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

September was a busy month with the beginning of a new school year, the celebration of Rosh Hashanah, the birthday of the world, and Yom Kippur, the day of atonement. We heard stories about asking for forgiveness, and we thought about how we should behave in the new year. We celebrated Sukkot during an assembly on Sharing Shabbat with Rabbi Polish and Cantor Hirschenfang, followed by a special program and the building and decorating of the Sukkah on Sunday, September 23rd. On Simchat Torah we marched around the sanctuary and we saw the Torah unroll before our eyes. We made these services an extension of our classrooms. In class we looked at the meaning of the Holy Days in our lives and the special blessings attached to each day.

In October, we are switching our focus, first by reviewing the significance of becoming a Bar or Bat Mitzvah, and attending services as both Sadie Krueger (on October 6th) and Zach Wogalter (on October 20th) are called to the bimah to chant from the Torah. Second, we will look at Shabbat and the Shabbat service. What is the meaning of Shabbat; how does Shabbat fit into our lives; and how does the service reflect this. The Shabbat morning service could really be divided into 4 parts: 1. the Barechu - call to order, Sh'ma & its blessings; 2. the Tefillah which includes Amidah; 3. the reading of the Torah with blessings before & after; 4. the Aleinu & concluding prayers.

Throughout October, November, and December, our students will be writing some prayers of their own to be included in a culminating activity, a student-led service on Saturday, December 15th, 2018. Watch for more information about this service in the November and December newsletters.

B'Shalom, Sue Marcoe

sfmarcoe@gmail.com; (home) 845-723-4045

P.S. Parents please bring your children early for Bagel Time (8:45 before class in the old building). School begins at 9 a.m. Unfortunately, no food is allowed in the classrooms. Students can finish their breakfast or get a nosh at Kiddush at 10:15am before services. Class time upstairs will be short, so come early for breakfast and time to socialize, and do join us after class for the Bat Mitzvah of Sadie and the Bar Mitzvah of Zach. What is important to you becomes important to your children

Special Sukkot Thank you

Roth's award-winning first book instantly established its author's reputation as a writer of explosive wit, merciless insight, and a fierce compassion for even the most self-deluding of his characters.

“Goodbye, Columbus” is the story of Neil Klugman and pretty, spirited Brenda Patimkin, he of poor Newark, she of suburban Short Hills, who meet one summer break and dive into an affair that is as much about social class and suspicion as it is about love. The novella is accompanied by five short stories that range in tone from the iconoclastic to the astonishingly tender and that illuminate the subterranean conflicts between parents and children and friends and neighbors in the American Jewish diaspora. Penguin Random House, publisher
