A Note from Rick: Steady markets at TLA this week. This has definitely turned into a pattern. We really haven't had any significant changes in any of our markets for quite some time now with the exception of the slaughter cow market, which fell off this Fall and seems to happen every year. The cow market generally regains strength after Thanksgiving headed into Christmas. The calf market isn't as consistent as it's been this summer. I feel this is a direct reflection of higher feed costs, which has created instability in the feeder market. The hay market has picked up a little in volume, but still isn't quite where it generally is this time of year. Prices are still very strong and definitely look like they will remain that way. Thanksgiving looked a little different this year for a lot of families and I hope you were still able to take the time to slow down and count your blessings. Hunting gives me the time to sit in the woods and be still and reflect. Over Thanksgiving I was able to do that and you can bet I thanked the good Lord for my family and all of the blessings in my life. Thank you to all of our employees and customers for making TLA such an amazing place. We are so thankful for all of you. I am thankful that I look forward to going to work and love what I do. Hope to see you at TLA in December at one of our horse sales!
