

The Stickman No. 1 Puzzle Box

(Oak Wood Slide Box)

The Stickman No. 1 boxes are Robert's first puzzle, and initially crafted as Christmas gifts for friends and family. A few of these extras eventually found their way onto e-bay and into craft booths. This initiated the start of the Stickman Puzzle Box Company, as a few collectors stumbling across them requested new and different designs. These puzzles were originally known as "Oak Wood Slide Boxes" in instruction books, and it was not until after Robert's second design, that they took on the "Stickman No. 1 Puzzle" name.

Rustic and rugged in construction, these puzzleboxes were fashioned using just a radial arm saw and hand drill. Many of these boxes differ in size and appearance, as boxes from this generation were first assembled, then later trimmed down to size. A unique feature in these puzzles was an internal mechanism that locked drawers at various positions so that the closing of one drawer would slide open another.
