

Long-term goals of continuing this initiative

This initiative by two local teachers in Brampton has turned into a huge success due to their creativity in bringing together their ideas and some very special people to connect with the students. While the initial contact was unexpected by the Bramalea Stamp Club, the success of the connection has been inspirational for all involved. Having participated for three years with different ages of students, at different schools, the Bramalea Stamp Club is thrilled to have reached several hundred children and hope that they can continue to work with these teachers to inspire students about stamp collecting and postal history as a way to communicate, learn about history and geography, culture and art and to share their love of the hobby. If we can share this initiative with other schools, groups and philatelists around the world, many more may be inspired.
