Emotions, a practical map for your inner journey By José Sanchez – based on the article "My Examen Cheat Sheet" by Lisa Kelly

In a world that values productivity, achievement, and external success, it can be easy to lose touch with our inner selves. We may become so focused on achieving our goals that we forget to check in with ourselves, to listen to our inner movements, and to be present with our emotions. However, the Jesuits remind us that analyzing a situation is not the be-all and end-all of a situation. What is more important is recognizing evidence of the presence of God, beyond us, bigger than us and infinite.

In the Spiritual Exercises, St. Ignatius emphasizes the importance of recognizing what is stirring inside us. It can be new ideas, gut feelings, or something else entirely. Whatever it may be, when those thoughts stir something inside, we are to sit up and take notice. Ignatius invites us to name that feeling, to admit it for better or worse, and to have a conversation with God about it. Are they invitations or temptations? Are they of God or not of God? By doing so, we are able to gain insight into our own inner workings and identify how we are letting situations affect us.

For many of us, being analytical is second nature. We like to analyze situations, control or resolve them, and move on to the next challenge. However, it is important to remember that our emotions are an integral part of who we are. By acknowledging and naming our feelings, we are able to move beyond analysis and control and start identifying patterns in our emotions. We begin to see how our emotions affect our actions and how we can respond more authentically to the situations in which we find ourselves.

A cheat sheet of feeling words can be a helpful tool in recognizing and naming our emotions. You can find one here: feelingswheel.com. By keeping a list of feeling words in the back of our journal, we can use it during the Examen as a cheat sheet of sorts. Sometimes the right feeling word will jump out at us, stirring memories of where we felt it during the day. Other times, we may notice patterns in our emotions, recognizing that we have been feeling insignificant more often than we would like.

Identifying patterns in our emotions can become the launching point for our prayer. We can imagine our feelings as a big blob of something that we can look at and sit with. We can listen to what infinite love says about it, without feeling like we have to stamp it out, avoid it, embrace it, or react to it. By simply naming our feelings and noticing them, we can discern whether our feelings are moving us toward or away from the person God needs us to be.

Listening to our inner movements is essential for living a fulfilling life. It helps us stay grounded in the present moment, gain insight into our emotions, and identify patterns in our lives. By accompanying ourselves on our inner journey, we can develop a deeper relationship with God and move toward the person we are called to be.

Dear Padre,

What is spiritual Communion?

Saint Thomas Aquinas said spiritual Communion is "an ardent desire to receive Jesus in the Most Holy Sacrament"...and to lovingly embrace "Him as if we had actually received Him." It is the practice of desiring union with Christ in the Eucharist by those who cannot receive holy Communion for valid cause, such as an infirmity or an irregular marriage. During the COVID-19 pandemic, Pope Francis also said the practice is "highly recommended when it is not possible to receive the sacrament."

A prayer by St. Alphonsus Liguori is ideal for those unable to receive holy Communion:

My Jesus,

I believe that you are present in the Most Blessed Sacrament.

I love you above all things, and I desire to receive you into my soul.

Since I cannot now receive you sacramentally, come at least spiritually into my heart.

I embrace you as if you were already there and I unite myself wholly to you. Never permit me to be separated from you. Amen.

Saint John Paul II wrote, "It is good to cultivate in our hearts a constant desire for the sacrament of the Eucharist. This was the origin of the practice of 'spiritual Communion,' which has happily been established in the Church for centuries and recommended by saints....Saint Teresa of Jesus wrote: 'When you do not receive Communion and you do not attend Mass, you can make a spiritual Communion, which is a most beneficial practice; by it the love of God will be greatly impressed on you'" (Ecclesia de Eucharistia, 34).

A WORD FROM POPE FRANCIS

We are asked to summon the courage and the intelligence to resolve today's many geopolitical and economic crises. Even in the developed world, the effects of unjust structures and actions are all too apparent. Our efforts must aim at restoring hope, righting wrongs, maintaining commitments, and thus promoting the well-being of individuals and of peoples.

Finding Buried Treasure

FR. JOSEPH JUKNIALIS

uch like still-fishing, which is when the fish ultimately find the one sitting quietly waiting for the fish, most of the really treasured aspects of life somehow find us when we're not looking. Consider falling in love or discovering a friend; the job you enjoy so much that you'd almost do it for free; a hobby that gives you so much satisfaction; creative gifts you never knew you had until you stumbled upon them later in life. To say nothing of happiness for which so many go looking and never seem to find, while others are happy without ever seeking it out.

Wisdom, the gift Solomon asked for, is much like all of that. It seems to find us. Common sense, the stepchild of wisdom, is something most parents want their children to have, and, for some parents, it may be a source of great frustration as they try to make sure their children have it and use it. Wisdom is certainly a hint of the kingdom of heaven, but then so too is finding love and experiencing joy and living with a peace that refuses to be unsettled by the storms of life. All of those are the buried treasures of which the Gospel speaks, just as for others it is the pearl of great price for which they look and look until it finds them, not unlike still-fishing. All are buried treasures, hidden pearls, and tastes of eternal life.

> Reflect Is there a treasure in your life that ultimately found you?
