ASCE HAWAII SECTION AUGUST DINNER MEETING NOTICE

Program: Autonomous and Driverless Vehicles: Hype, Reality and Sample Major Impacts
 The next big thing in urban transportation is autonomous, driverless and connected vehicles, one manifestation of which is TaaS or Transportation as a Service. There are major players in this. NHTSA and FHWA from the government. Congress, which just passed a law for experimentation on public roads. And major private giants such as Apple, Google and Uber from the tech industry, and Ford, Tesla and Toyota from the manufacturing industry, just to name a few. In some form or another, all of these technologies are present, here and now. But there is a lot of hype, and tough realities to deal with. There is no doubt that these technologies will impact infrastructure as we know it. This presentation will shine some light to the multiple dimensions of this unfamiliar and fast approaching future.

Speaker: Panos D. Prevedouros, PhD, Department Chairman and Professor of Transportation Engineering, Civil and Environmental Engineering, University of Hawaii at Manoa.

Date: Thursday, August 16, 2018
