

When Maggie Comer left abject poverty in the rural South, she never dreamed she would become the mother of five children who share thirteen college degrees. Here is an inspiring family success story that illustrates how to find the grit to succeed, despite the odds stacked against one.