School Characteristics and Replicable Practices

Academic Excellence

We create a culture of academic excellence, and we challenge all students to use their minds well.

Our students know that our teachers expect everyone to succeed, and no excuses are allowed.

Our instructional strategies include a variety of challenging and engaging activities clearly related to grade-level standards, concepts, and skills being taught.

Developmental Responsiveness

At Adairville we recognize that our students are in a particularly critical stage in their development. We strive to create an environment that meets the needs and challenges of our student body.

Since we are a school that values and works diligently to foster a family atmosphere, we make it a priority to include parents in their children's education.

Our school is also partnering with our district to develop a Portrait of a Graduate. We have developed our Portrait of a Graduate as a "Profile of Success" to focus on six key skills we want our students to master when they leave Adairville School: Community, Character, Collaboration, Communication, Creativity, and Critical-Thinking.

Social Equity

At Adairville School, we take pride in the unique way our school mirrors the very democracy in which we live in this country. Our students are provided with a voice and are valued as contributing members to our school culture.

Our student body has been observed to be an incredibly welcoming and accepting group of young adults--not necessarily due to an open-minded, global community, but because of the initiatives embraced by our school to overcome the prejudices and exclusivity that can pervade a small, isolated, rural community like ours.

Because our middle school is the apex of our preschool through 8th grade configuration, we spend years becoming familiar with students in our school family and their natural gifts and personal needs.

Organizational Support

Our middle school team has had the unique experience of working together for the past eleven years. Not many schools can boast about such a consistent partnership and bond with their fellow teachers. Our strong collaboration is evident in all that we do from our flexibility with our schedule, implementing new district initiatives like Project Based Learning, and continuously striving to make necessary changes to improve instruction and our family here at Adairville.

In order to create a culture of shared leadership, our teachers have formed learning communities (PLC's) to analyze data for making decisions, sharing resources, and improving instruction. Moreover, administrators partner with district leadership to provide high-quality, content-rich professional development.
