

Fences Continued

“August Wilson is an American voice we need to listen to as another dynamic of our American experience,” said Deaner. “We are so intertwined on so many levels that to separate black from white is on its face divisive.”

Deaner says that strong leadership at LSCT is motivated to celebrate diversity and bring their influence to bear to increase inclusivity in the theatre.

“It’s my hope that this will spark a discussion that could lead to more main stage theater for actors of color,” Deaner said, “I think great art reflects cultural reality and cultural need and August Wilson was writing more than a play, it was American history written from black perspective.”

Deaner quoted the original director of “Fences” to demonstrate the meaning of the play. “One of the dynamics of ‘Fences’ is the deprivation of possibility.” Another dynamic that Deaner sees in the script is responsibility, and what they means from different points of view.

“Deprivation of possibility is profoundly sad and anti-American, that’s the subtext and the message is we should all be looking for opportunities,” said Deaner. For Deaner that means breaking down institutional racism and exclusion by default.

Through a series of four informational meetings in Duluth, Deaner was able to recruit five actors of color from Duluth, one from Proctor, and another from Superior.

“The cast is extremely excited, and humbled to bring this play to the northshore, they know this is historic and has never happened before,” stated Deaner.

The dates for the play are below, and tickets can be obtained at the door or by going to: www.lsct.us. The cost of tickets are $12.00, or $8.00 for students.

Community Violence Prevention Classes to be Offered in Grand Marais

By Kate Jackson

Power-based personal violence is a type of violence whose primary motivator is to assert power, control and/or intimidation in order to harm another individual. Power-based violence can take many forms, particularly rape/sexual assault, child sexual abuse, domestic violence, bullying, stalking or harassment.

Acts of power-based violence are extremely common in our broader society, some may even say this type of violence has reached an epidemic level. Thankfully, everyday people can become part of the solution in their own communities.

Green Dot Bystander Intervention is an approach to preventing power-based violence using the help of bystanders. The goal is to empower community members to become proactive and reactive bystanders when this type of violence is occurring or when there are signs that it may occur.

Cook County Higher Education will be offering free Green Dot Bystander Intervention training courses on Friday, March 30th (at 12 pm and again at 6 pm) and Saturday, March 31st (at 10am). Classes will be led by instructors Amy Swensen and Marlys Wisch and are being sponsored by Choices and Voices Project and North Shore Health Care Foundation.

Here’s a quick breakdown of what attendees can expect from these 2.5 hour training sessions:

- The session will introduce participants to the issues of power-based personal violence prevention.

- Participants will recognize behaviors that may constitute domestic violence, sexual violence, or stalking, child abuse, or behaviors that may be immediate precursors to these types of violence.
- Participants will be intrinsically motivated to intervene in order to: reduce harm after possible violence has started, reduce the likelihood that it will happen again, and reduce the likelihood that it will happen at all.
- Participants will recognize obstacles that may prevent them from doing something in the face of potential power-based personal violence.
- Participants will develop realistic options to act given their unique set of obstacles.
- Participants will learn realistic pro-social behaviors they can do to shift the community culture to one that is intolerant of violence and supportive of bystander intervention.

Classes are free to attend and will be held at Cook County Higher Education, 300 West 3rd St. in Grand Marais. If you would like to attend one of these training sessions, please register ahead of time at www.northshorecampus.org, by calling 218-387-3411 or by email at highered@northshorecampus.org.
