Altar Servers

In the absence of instituted acolytes, lay ministers may be deputed to serve at the altar and assist the priest and the deacon. These ministers are commonly called “altar servers.”

In confirming the disposition of the Pontifical Council for the Interpretation of Legislative Texts that service at the altar may be carried out equally by men and women, the Congregation for Divine Worship stated: “The Holy See wishes to recall that it will always be very appropriate to follow the noble tradition of having boys serve at the altar. As is well known, this has led to a reassuring development of priestly vocations. Thus the obligation to support such groups of altar boys will always continue.”

Altar servers should receive proper formation before they begin their service. Their formation should include instruction in the Mass and its parts and their meaning, the names and uses of various sacred objects used in the liturgy, and the various functions of the server during the Mass and other liturgical celebrations. Servers should also receive guidance on proper decorum and attire when serving Mass and other functions. It is advisable for a prudent and experienced person to be designated as coordinator for the altar servers in the parish and for them to be guided by a master of ceremonies at least in more elaborate or less familiar liturgical celebrations.

When minors have been deputed as altar servers, they should be mature enough to understand their responsibilities and to carry them out well and with appropriate reverence. They should have already received their First Holy Communion and should normally receive the Holy Eucharist whenever they participate in the liturgy. The policies of the Archdiocese of Portland in Oregon on safeguarding children should be fully implemented.

Normally altar servers should be vested, especially on Sundays and major feast days. This is the tradition of the Church and prevents difficulties regarding appropriate dress. In the dioceses of the United States of America, altar servers may wear the alb and cincture or other suitable vesture or other appropriate and dignified clothing. In the Archdiocese of Portland in Oregon, “other appropriate and dignified clothing” includes the cassock and surplice as a preferred option, though school uniforms and the various scouting uniforms may also be worn, and other lay attire that is suitable for service within the sanctuary. Since the cassock and surplice is clerical attire, it should be reserved for seminarians, installed acolytes, masters of ceremonies and male altar servers.

Altar servers may carry the cross, the candles, the thurible, the bread, the wine, and the water. In the absence of a deacon and acolyte, they may also arrange the altar linens, sacred vessels, and Missal on the altar, and they may incense the priest and the people.

If they are of age and otherwise qualified, altar servers may also be deputed to distribute Holy Communion as extraordinary ministers, under the conditions established by the Archdiocese of Portland in Oregon.
