HOW MUCH CAN A KOALA BEAR?

If you have had a chance to watch the news lately, you will have seen that our native Koala has been featured in several stories. Video of a young Koala swimming up to a canoe on the Gold Coast in Queensland, had many people surprised that they could swim at all! On further investigation, it appears that Koalas have been swimming across rivers for some time! Take a look at this guy swimming the Kenneth River in Victoria.

If you are planning on traveling to Melbourne, make sure you leave a day to do the 'Koalas & Kangaroos IN THE WILD' tour. The tour will give you the opportunity to interact with wild animals in their natural habitats on a small group eco-tour:

September is "Save the Koala Month" and we would like to our bit to but help those who do tremendous work in rescuing and rehabilitating Koalas. If you would like to contribute to Australia Zoo's Conservation Project you can donate here to help the rehabilitation of Koalas at their onsite Wildlife Hospital.

Last year 833 Koalas were admitted to Australia Zoo's Wildlife Hospital, mostly from disease, dog attacks or being hit by a car. Mammal breeding season is here now, which means more Koalas are down on the ground and often have babies in their pouch! More than ever we are needing to save this national icon from extinction.
