comes down to one."
Brett was 0-for-3 in the final game, but his walk touched off KC's decisive four-run rally in the sixth inning.

George Brett

City on the brink of elimination.
"Saturday really hurt," Brett said. "But we came in relaxed on Sunday. I said the pressure was on them. I don't know why I said that."

Baseball

For the playoffs, Brett batted .348, had two doubles, three home runs and five RBIs, two of them game-winners. He also walked a playoff-record seven times and had an .826 slugging percentage.

Baseball

He became the most dominant player in AL playoff history, setting career records for runs (22), total bases (75), home runs (9), long hits (18), hits (35) and RBIs (19).
