2019 Stories We'd Love to See

Beaver Pond

Beavers have been discovered in the Stormwater Management Pond at the south end of the Spring Fair grounds. Having destroyed about a third of the trees around the pond to make dams that dam up nothing, Whitby staff determined these aren't terribly bright beavers. So they plan to trap them and deliver them to a suitable location along highway 412, along with a large sign that reads, "Dam it!"

Rhonda for PM?

Having first won a ward victory and then a regional council seat, both within 28 months, Rhonda Mulcahy is being wooed by various federal parties to run in the October election. However, the NDP isn't yet so sure. An unnamed source tells the BTC that, unless someone can prove she owns and actually wears Birkenstock sandals, it's unclear if that party should pursue her further.

Transit this

Someone in Durham Transit, which mostly leaves Brooklin swinging in the wind, took exception to the recent survey sent out by the Town of Whitby to all residents. When they heard about the "Can a bus" survey and whether or not Whitby should opt out, one official was overheard to say,"Well, look, if those Whitby people are wondering if a bus can or can't, maybe we shouldn't drive in Whitby at all."

Committee of the What?

Whitby Town Council recently took great pride in announcing its new committee structure. Individual Operations and the Planning and Development Committee will be rolled into one and replaced by Committee of the Whole. However, council is also contemplating these names:

Committee of Come Together Right Now as One with Unified Feelings The Kumbaya Committee Committee of Committees IOPaDCom Committee of All Parts making the Whole

A Lot of Something

The vacant lot at the corner of Baldwin and Way Streets was supposed to be the home of a new RBC Branch. Readers may have noticed that absolutely nothing's happened there for quite some time. The BTC has learned that the lot isn't really vacant after all, though it is to the naked eye. Canada's elite special operations force, JTF2, has secretly constructed an underground facility, which is why there's been no construction on the site. Meanwhile, our local Legion 152 has been mum on what goes on in its basement.

Hostile takeover

this newspaper is being hunted by what sources tell us is Breitbart News in the United States. Evidently conservative news outlet is looking for a toehold in Canada and wants to do it through community papers.

Letter to the Editor: No Cannabis!

Brooklin is a growing family town, a destination for many relocating from Toronto, because of its hometown appeal. Please do not ruin this aspect of Brooklin by bringing cannabis into it. If residents want the stuff badly enough, they can go elsewhere to get it rather than make it too easy. This drug, in my opinion, would make it harder for our stores to continue to do business effectively. We do not need our children endangered nor compromise our addiction abuse centre's efforts to heal.

When it all boils down to it, the real reason cannabis has been legalized is because there is money to be had.

What we covered in 2018

The top story of last year was clearly the two major elections as both will have an immediate impact on the region and, more specifically, Brooklin.

In October, Rhonda Mulcahy dipped her toes into the Regional Council pool by vacating her Ward One seat and running for the region. In a race that involved 10 candidates with four to be elected from Whitby, she succeeded though it was close. She finished fourth, behind Elizabeth Roy, Chris Leahy and Steve Yamada, just 490 votes ahead of the next best challenger, Terry Johnston.

Meanwhile, Whitby's Ward One seat was won by newcomer Steve Lee who handily beat out his two challengers Bill Windrem and Sharmila Saigaonkar.

Mayor Don Mitchell (also from Brooklin) was re-elected for a second term. Durham Region also elected a new Regional Chair, John Henry, Oshawa's former mayor, along with a host of other new councillors

The June provincial election, which vaulted Doug Ford into the premier's chair, had PC incumbent (and former Whitby councillor) Lorne Coe win re-election.

Our Brooklin Kids By Leanne Brown

The New Year Board Games Edition

Happy New Year! It's the time of year when the fun of the holidays is behind us and the reality of months of cold winter weather set in.

As much as we may like to be outside enjoying the snow, some days it just isn't possible due to adverse weather. While a movie and blanket on the couch are a great family activity, this often leads to us overeating. Movies also don't necessarily get us talking to each other.

This Christmas, the theme of our daughter's gifts turned out to be games and we're having a blast. With new PS4 games and the addition of an air hockey table, we've spent hours just laughing among heated competitions. It's been so much fun and created a wonderful bonding time. But the best times have been playing good old fashioned board games.

Over the holidays, we visited my parents. They don't have cable, the internet service is weak and cell service is only available if you walk to the end of the street. Yes, they live out in the country.

The lack of technology had me digging into the attic for games and Ifound a treasure trove. Games from my childhood: Jenga, Clue, Boggle, Connect Four, Mousetrap, Cranium and a Monopoly game that doesn't come with a calculator.

Christmas Day had three generations playing games all day. The phones and tablets weren't touched. The TV was off. Yet it was far from guiet. Grandma turned out to be the most competitive member of our family. We even saw her do a victory dance that included her "flossing" (I so wish I had that on video.).

So if you have any of those old games in the closet, bring them out for a night or pick up a board game at a toy store. Once you get past the groans and protests, you won't be disappointed.

campaign resulted in 117 motorists being arrested for drinking and driving offences, five more than last year.

Durham Regional Police officers conducted R.I.D.E. checks in Ajax, Pickering, Uxbridge, Port Perry, Whitby, Oshawa, and Newcastle in Week 7 and 12 people were charged with impaired driving offences. The final numbers from the 2018 Festive R.I.D.E. campaign are as follows (the numbers in brackets reflect the 2017 Festive R.I.D.E. totals, for comparison):

25110 (12593) Vehicles stopped by R.I.D.E.

875 (624) People given Roadside Breath Tests

111 (98) People received "3 Day Suspensions" for registering a "WARN"

25 (22) Novice Driver received a 24hr Licence Suspension

Seven weeks of the Festive R.I.D.E. 117 (112) People were charged with Drinking and Driving Offences

241 (153) Criminal Code charges 489 (379) Charged with various Highway Traffic Act offences 9 (10) Drug Charges

27 (0) Cannabis Act offences

12 (0) Standard Field Sobriety Tests

After seven weeks, the Festive R.I.D.E. team charged a total of 117 motorists for drinking and driving offences. Last year, 112 had been charged. Another 111 motorists registered a WARN on a roadside screening device and had their driver's licence suspended for 3 days. Last year, a total of 98 drivers had their licence suspended for registering a WARN.

Police would also like to remind motorists to become aware of the new Cannabis Laws while transporting it in your motor vehicle. A driver cannot have cannabis in a motor vehicle when the seal of its original packaging is open and is within reach of the driver.

Festive R.I.D.E. officers are equipped with Body Worn Cameras (BWC) for the first time and for the duration of the festive R.I.D.E. season as part of a pilot project.

A complete list of those charged with Impaired/Exceed is posted at www.drps.ca under Hot Topics.

Durham Regional Police Service will continue R.I.D.E. spot checks throughout the year and remind motorists that drinking and driving or driving high will not be tolerated on our streets.

Note: Under the Ontario Highway Traffic Act, anyone charged with a drinking and driving criminal offence will have his or her driver's licence suspended for 90 days and their vehicle impounded automatically for 7 days.

North Ward Councillor - By Steve Lee

New Committee Structure

I hope everyone had a very merry Christmas and a happy New Year! I am looking forward to the new council getting right to work. Here's an update on a few items in the works now that we've had our inauguration and I've been sworn in as North Ward Councillor. I've been working at addressing issues and concerns brought up by residents as well as attending various events.

There are a few things I draw your attention to. The first, as Regional Councillor Mulcahy wrote about in a previous edition, are the council goals. We have unanimously adopted these to better guide us and align with what we hope to achieve the next four years. This is a very good step and a great start for council. We can all work together to make Brooklin and Whitby even better.

The second item is that we sent out a survey on the option of allowing retail cannabis stores in Whitby and Brooklin or choosing to opt out and not allow the province to allow them in Whitby. I hope you took the opportunity to give your input. If you have any comments I would be happy to hear them as we need as much public input on this as possible so as to make the best decision for you.

Finally, Council has approved a new committee structure, which will see dedicated nights for public meetings and will give each Council member a chance to participate online on the town's website, fully in all meetings.

The new structure, approved at a Special Council Meeting held on Tuesday, December 11, will see individual Operations and Planning and Development Committee meetings replaced with Committee of the Whole meetings.

The first meeting will be Committee of the Whole on Monday, January 7, 2019, with the meeting cycle continuing thereafter as follows:

Week 1 - Public meeting

Week 2 - Committee of the Whole

meeting Week 3 - Committee of the Whole meeting

Week 4 - Council meeting

This new structure will allow all Members of Council to vote in both Committee of the Whole and Council Meetings. As well, dedicated evenings for public meetings will also help streamline the process through which the community can provide input.

The new schedule significantly increases the number of opportunities for Town staff to bring forward reports for Council's consideration.

This structure should help expedite approvals and reduce the wait time at meetings for both residents and business partners.

The 2019 schedule of public and committee meetings is available whitby.ca.

Group 74's October Halloween event Boo!Fest raised over $1800 for Hearth Place's paediatric cancer support program. Some money raised also went towards Christmas turkey dinners and other support for local needy families.

Group 74 encourages Brooklin area women who want to really make a difference in the community to join them in these efforts.

Interested in speaking at the Whitby Council meeting?

Individuals who would like to speak to an item on the agenda, must register with the Town Clerk by 10 a.m. on the day of the meeting. Delegation Request Forms are available at www.whitby.ca/delegation and should be submitted to

Where white doves soar: A Sleep Out for Homeless Kids By Richard Bercuson

The night of Thursday, November 15 in Toronto was cool, slightly below 00, with light snow. Jim Smillie laid out a piece of cardboard on the damp ground and unrolled his sleeping bag on top of hit. To one side of him, NHL Hall of Famer Paul Coffey did the same. On the other side was ex-NHL GM Brian Burke, also bedding down for the night, outdoors.

Brooklin resident Smillie recalls that "the sounds of the downtown night" - sirens, car horns, loud bangs, chatter - all conspired against him, allowing barely an hour of sleep. This, he thought, was exactly what homeless kids do nearly every night. How on earth do they get through it?

Smillie's experience, he says, changed his life. "For one thing, I'm a little more relaxed now."

Chance meeting

How his night on the street with two prominent hockey names came about began with a chance discussion at a wedding. A couple of friends had told him about Covenant House (CH), an organization whose goal was to help homeless kids. Intrigued, he visited the organization and was given a tour of what CH represents.

"There's a wall in the building," he recalls, "with white doves on it. Each dove represents a kid who didn't make it. It was very humbling."

He learned there aren't many success stories though he did meet one 15 year old who managed to not only survive but also thrive and is now a full time student at York University. Yet, at any given time, CH houses as many as 96 kids between the ages of 15-20.

"You know, coming from a neighbourhood like ours in Brooklin," he says, "it's really hard to understand. For instance, it was alarming to discover just how many young girls are in the sex trade. What I do in my daily job in sales seems so unimportant compared with what these kids undergo day in and day out. And so many come from the suburbs and just gravitate to downtown Toronto."

Fundraiser

The 'sleep out' was an annual event organized by CH to give executives and prominent individuals an opportunity to get a taste of what homeless kids experience. That November night, 57 people slept outdoors on the grounds of Ryerson University, albeit in a protected area, quite unlike what the kids themselves do.

One thing they weren't protected from, however, were the rats. "That was my only fear. Let me tell you," Smillie points out, "Toronto has rats - lots of them."

Covenant House's annual Sleep Out event was a fundraiser since 82% of its funds come from private donations. That particular evening raked in over $1 million with Smillie's personal campaign surpassing his $15k objective and bringing in $17,860. Over 90% of all money raised goes directly to CH's programs which run in Vancouver as well.

Smillie's enthusiasm to help the cause has resulted in CH asking him to recruit other "executives" to participate in next year's campaign, an offer he readily accepts.

He adds, "I will gladly do it again next year.

Smillie starts to bed down for the night.

From Brooklin Heritage Society Brooklin's First Pharmacy

Russell (Russ) Short's first place of employment after graduating from University of Toronto's School of Pharmacy was with Jury and Lovell in Oshawa.In the late 1940s, he moved to Toronto to work for Hoop-ers Drug Store at Bloor and Sherbourne where he partnered with the son of the owner, Bill Burgess.

The 1950s saw the introduction of discount retail, making retailing by the smaller service providers more challenging. So Russ decided to relocate to a town that could support a pharmacy. This was at a time when Brooklin was growing with a new residential subdivision and the community supported a medical centre. He purchased 65 Baldwin Street and moved with his wife Bernice and sons Bob, Jim and Gary to Brooklin.

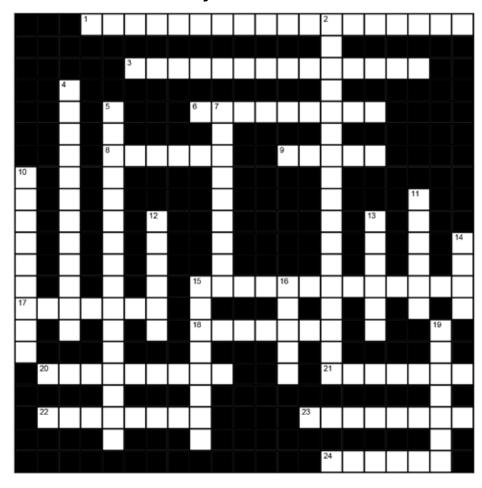

Construction of Short's Pharmacy commenced in 1959 with the grand opening in May, 1960. It was Brook-lin's first Pharmacy. In the early days, the store was open seven days a week with extended hours on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays (9 to 9). New jobs came into the village and Russ emlocal ployed people.

The pharmacy served an area well beyond Brooklin as flyers were regularly distributed to residents as far as Locust Hill in the west, Hampton in the east and Greenbank in the north. In 1971 Russ was joined by Bill Burgess who relocated from Toronto to live in Ashburn. Russ suffered a stroke in 1980 and was unable to return to work. His partner Burgess continued with the business, and at his retirement, Bill's daughter Peggy Frankovich took it over. Russ passed away in 1984 and is buried in his home town of Bowmanville.

2017 was a year of growth. In 2018, things slowed down. New policy constraints, higher mortgage rates, and moderate economic growth have cooled the market.

So, what does the 2019 housing market have in store?

Predictions are for modest gains in the Toronto area re-sale housing— a return to home prices climbing in the low single digits. Royal LePage is expecting a 1.3% price gain while Remax is forecasting a 2% price increase.

"An ongoing supply issue in the GTA was masked by the fact that sales had dropped off substantially. Now we're in a situation where sales are certainly not back at their record level, but we've also seen listings move back down to where they were prior to the volatility," said Jason Mercer, TREB's Director of Market Analysis .

This suggests that, in many neighbourhoods, competition between buyers may have increased. Relatively tight market conditions over the past few months have provided the foundation for renewed price growth," said TREB President Garry Bhaura.

A positive sign for a strong market in 2019 is an increased rate of immigration into Canada. Statistics Canada estimates there will be as many as 330,000 newcomers to Canada in 2019. The influx of tech companies into Toronto's downtown core in recent years has already had "a huge effect" on the real estate market, said Anthony Hitt, CEO of Engel & Völkers.

Toronto now ranks as 4th most important tech hub in North America, up from 12th place just two years ago. And it's about to intensify. Microsoft has plans for a new Canadian headquarters in Toronto and Intel announced a new graphics chip engineering plant in North York. The current market slowdown is a "speed bump," Hitt says — the market will be back to rapid price growth soon enough thanks to an influx of tech workers, he predicts.
