

Sage Grouse

Several Tribal members have noted dramatic declines in numbers of Greater Sage Grouse on the Reservation over the last few decades, a phenomena that is occurring throughout the range of the species. The Department's Sage Grouse study is intended to better understand the population trend occurring in this area as well as to understand their habitat requirements and make improvements to better meet those requirements on the Reservation. To learn more about these fabulous birds please click here.