

From the Desk of Roundtable President Charles Holt

March 2021 Newsletter www.WWIIroundtable.com

Hello! Almost time to Spring forward your clocks (14th) an hour. Also a great time to renew your dues/join/encourage others to join. The WWII Roundtable has been around for 35 years, but, we cannot continue without paying members and donations. Organizations like ours run on a very short shoestring...we have no paid employees and most costs involve maintaining our website/Zoom and hybrid meetings/mail costs. Many organizations have gone under over the past year, in great part due to COVID, including roundtables/museums/tours/collector and air and military vehicle shows. You can pay easily on our website or by mail. We had a great talk via Zoom, last month, on the American military cemeteries around the world by CDR (RET) Ron May. We work very hard to line up good speakers and always welcome leads on speakers (can be someone's deceased military relative's story) and we can speak for them/help with a Power Point Presentation (PPP). Our monthly 4th Monday program will be a hybrid, again—Yeah!--in person and Zoom to those who can't attend on this 22nd. See important RSVP information below.

Thanks and volunteer! Charles

WW II TRIVIA for March 2021

- ◆ Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr. had five wives.
- ◆ When MacArthur ordered the Japanese delegation to come to Manila to work out the initial activities for the Japanese surrender procedure he ordered that as the Japanese planes approached Manila they use the code word 'Bataan' to identify themselves.
- ◆ At Potsdam, Truman, Churchill and Stalin conducted their meeting in a refurbished castle once owned by Kaiser Wilhelm who was blamed by many for starting WW I.
- ◆ Harry Truman was a Baptist and not supposed to drink or gamble. But it was well-known the Harry liked his booze and playing poker. When he was selected to receive an honorary doctoral degree from Baylor University, a Baptist institution, some questions were raised within the Baptist community. The Baptists, however, were able to work it out and Harry received the degree.
- ◆ British General Bernard Montgomery usually read excerpts from his Bible each night before going to bed.
- ◆ On June 14, 1934 Hitler and Mussolini met for the first time. Hitler wore civilian clothes, a brown Mackintosh and Hamburg hat. Mussolini wore a full military uniform – clearly a diplomatic snafu. Mussolini later said to an aide “I don’t like the looks of him.”
- ◆ In London the home of the British Prime Minister is #10 Downing St. For 5 years in the 1920s Winston Churchill lived at #11 Downing St.
- ◆ By the end of 1934 the Nazi Party had become so strong in Germany that its paramilitary organization and predecessor to the SS, the SA (Sturmabteilung- Storm Trooper) had some 400,000 members . That was four times the size of the German Army.
- ◆ In his book “The Gathering Storm” Churchill wrote that, at the start of WW II, FDR asked him what this new war should be called. Churchill wrote “I said at once ‘The Unnecessary War.’ There never was a war more easy to stop than that which has first wrecked what was left of the world from the previous struggle.”

*Cecilienhof Country House, built from 1913–17 in the style of a country manor, and was the last palace erected by the Hohenzollerns. Until 1945 it was the home of the crown prince and princess, William and Cecilie of Prussia, who had previously resided in the Marble House. The country house’s appearance was adapted to the natural surroundings through the use of traditional materials such as brick and wood. It fits beautifully into the northern part of the New Garden, which was created at the end of the 18th century in style of an English landscape garden. . . .From July 17 to August 2, 1945, the summit meeting of World War II’s victorious powers took place here, attended by the “Big Three” – the American president Harry S. Truman, the British prime minister Winston Churchill (followed by his successor Clement Attlee), and the Soviet head of state Joseph Stalin. Loss of Wake in December 1941 . . .

Again, in light of John Shively's upcoming lecture series for March, what happened in the Pacific following the December attacks on Pearl Harbor? Here are a few highlights from contemporary newspaper clips. Don't forget that newspapers across the nation were packed full of news reports, especially human interest stories such as the surrender of Wake. What happened to Major Devereux? What a miserable experience this must have been for his and so many others families in December 1941. Go to the newspaper link below to read the whole story!

For the whole story, go to: Dec. 25, 1941 in The Evening Star (Washington, D.C.) <https://chroniclingamerica.loc.gov/lccn/sn83045462/1941-12-25/ed-1/seq-3/ate1=1940&index=4&rows=20&words=Island+Wake&searchType=basic&sequence=0&state=&date2=1942&proxtext=Wake+Island&y=9&x=11&dateFilterType=yearRange&page=1>

Chevy Chase Family Clings To Hope . . .

A foreign flag rippled over Wake Island today, but in a home in Chevy Chase, Md., this Christmas day, the widowed mother of the man who commanded the gallant "leathernecks" in their epic defense of that tiny Pacific outpost still sees her son at his post, unconquered.

The mother, Mrs. John Ryan Devereux, was told a few days ago that her son, Maj. James Patrick Sinnott Devereux, and his small force of marine were still holding out in the little Pacific fortress against daily assaults by the Japanese. Since then her family has told her nothing more.

Today she lies ill in her home at 3 West Bradley lane, unaware of the fate of her son and the island's other heroic defenders. But she knows in her heart what Maj. Devereux would never give up where there was a single chance left to fight.

Next door, at 1 West Bradley lane, a reporter for The Star last night brought Joseph S. Devereux, brother of Maj. Devereux, their first detailed information of the Navy Department's admission that the island probably has been lost to the enemy.

Refuse to Give Up Hope.

A Christmas tree was being decorated for three of the grandchildren of the mother of Maj. Devereux, visiting over the holidays and little son to think that James has escaped, or is even alive, maybe," Mrs. Joseph Devereux told the reporter. "But we are still hoping there's a chance. We'll keep on hoping until the last."

Family Is Large One.

The Devereux family is a large one. There are six brothers and four sisters, Joseph Devereux being the eldest. Maj. Devereux, who was 38 in February, is the fourth in age.

The wife of Maj. Devereux, the former Mary Welch, is the daughter of Col. John P. Welch, quartermaster at Governors Island, N. Y., where she and their 8-year-old son known as "Patty" have been residing for several months.

Maj. Devereux had been sent to Hawaii from San Diego, Calif., last January and Mrs. Devereux had accompanied him. Several months ago, due to illness, she had returned home.

The family has known that Maj. Devereux had been stationed in Wake Island for a long while. It was one of his regular assignments and meant occasional trips back and forth to Honolulu.

So when the first report of the Japanese attack on Wake Island, 18 days ago was reported, they knew he was there with his command.

Met in Philippines.

Maj. Devereux and his wife met about a dozen years ago when he was stationed at the Cavite naval base in the Philippines. They were married in Peiping, China, the family said. She was a bride of 17 years.

"There was nothing for them to do but to fight on Joseph repeated several times last night. Whether James is dead, a prisoner but I have no idea," he added with conviction.

He spoke feelingly about his brother. "James has a fine sense of humor and a fine sense of humor," he explained. "He loved the Corps and had served a lot. He came home here on a short leave before Hawaii. He hadn't been more than 12 hours when he reported back immediately managed to stay on in all and that is the last I saw of him."

Different members of the family had sent Christmas packages to the island.

Maj. Devereux, Wake Hero

Navy Concedes Wake Capture In Siege Outlasting Alamo

Japs Pay Heavy Price in Overpowering 400 Marines Led by Chevy Chase Officer

D. C., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1941. * A-3

NEW YORK.—The gallant major's wife, Mrs. James Devereux, and their son Pat, 8, are shown at the home of a friend in Washington, D. C., Thursday, December 25, 1941.

The Navy wrote a reluctant "final" to the gallant and almost unbelievable defense of Wake Island today, and a bright new page was entered in the annals of the United States Marines—the story of a siege that outlasted the Alamo.

Hours after conceding yesterday that capture of the sun-drenched Pacific atoll was "probable," the Navy told exactly how few were Wake's defenders and how inadequately they were armed—and not until then did full appreciation of the gallant defense dawn upon the Nation.

The dramatic story told how fewer than 400 fighting "leathernecks" held out against overwhelming odds for 14 days and destroyed four Japanese warships before surrendering the tiny mid-Pacific outpost.

Further, it was learned that the 378 officers and men had repelled not one but three previous landing attempts in the two-week siege before they were overwhelmed by vastly superior Japanese naval strength on a fourth landing effort December 23.

Had Few Defense Weapons.

Twelve fighter planes, six 5-inch guns, 12 three-inch guns and some smaller weapons were the backbone of the defense—these and the indomitable courage which has made the name of the United States Marines one to frighten any foe since the days of John Paul Jones.

On the final day of siege, after almost daily bomber assaults and heavy casualties, most of the marines' planes were gone and all the 5-inchers were out of action.

As the Navy told the story, Wake's defenders were in "serious trouble" by December 21.

Heavy Attacks Described.

"Seventeen heavy Japanese bombers attacked the island and were beaten off after heavy damage," the Navy said. "The 3-inch batteries struck, the power plant was damaged and the Diesel Oil Building and its equipment was destroyed, one 3-inch battery of four guns now ineffective."

The following day (December 22) Wake defenders reported that they had sustained still another attack by air, but that enemy ships and a transport moving in. This landing attempt was in great force, but two destroyers were put out of action by the marines before the Japs could effect a landing.

On December 23, Tokyo announced that Wake Island was completely occupied by Japanese forces.

The Navy Department was quick to admit that all communications with Wake had ceased. It stated approximately 2,000 miles of Honolulu, Wake Island was of a chain of small naval air bases desired for the use of the Navy's long-range patrol planes. It was used as a stopping point for B-24 Superfortress planes.

Admitted "Probable Capture."

After reporting repeated attacks on Guam, the Navy Department announced on December 13 that it was unable to communicate with the island either by radio or cable. It added that "the capture of the island is probable." At that time there were reported to be about 400 naval personnel and 155 marines on the island.

Fewer than 400 marines held Wake Island for 14 days against all-out Japanese attack. Day after day the Navy announced that Wake Island was still holding, and the dogged resistance of the defenders became a saga of bravery. The handful of men beat off the Japs with 12 fighter planes, six 5-inch, 51 caliber guns; twelve 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, eighteen 50-caliber anti-aircraft guns and thirty 30-caliber anti-aircraft guns, plus the usual small weapons.

Indication that the defenders went down fighting was given in an announcement on December 23 that two enemy destroyers were put

Island and 18 months after enlisting won his commission. Since, he has won official recognition by Navy medals in action in China and Nicaragua and has served at many posts, among them Quantico, San Diego, Honolulu, Peiping and Wake Island.

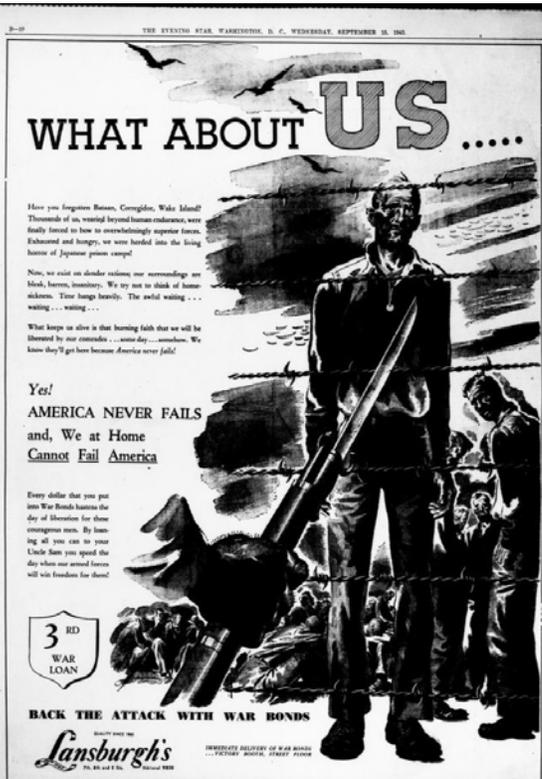

Presumed He Was Taken.

Maj. Devereux's mother, wife, sisters and brothers have long been aware that he must have been taken prisoner, in the absence of official word since the last message from Wake, December 22, admitted "the issue is in doubt."

Also among those believed by the Navy to have become Japanese prisoners when Wake Island fell are Maj. Potter, Capt. Tharnt, Lt. Lewis, Lt. Robinson, Sergt. Paszkiewicz and the three civilians.

Maj. Potter, whose home is Annapolis, was born there May 20, 1906 and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1927 to be appointed a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He has served in Nicaragua, the Philippines and

More than a year after the capture of American Pacific territories of Wake and Guam, appeals to raise war bonds and to support our POWs was prominent in most newspapers. Appeals, such as “Have you forgotten Bataan, Corregidor, Wake Island?” were intended to pull at people’s heart strings and wallets!

Who was on Wake in December 1941?

“By December 4, 1941, the atoll’s American garrison numbered only 524 officers and men— 449 Marines, 69 sailors, and a six-man radio detachment from the US Army. Three hundred and eighty-nine Marines belonged to the Wake Island Detachment, 1st Defense Battalion. That was only a third of the number needed to properly man the twelve 3-inch antiaircraft guns, six 5-inch seacoast guns, six searchlights, eighteen .50-caliber antiaircraft machine guns, and thirty .30-caliber machine guns that Kimmel sent to defend the atoll. The other 62 Leathernecks belonged to Marine Fighting Squadron (VMF) 211, which brought 12 Grumman F4F-3 Wildcat fighters to operate from Wake’s pounded coral runways.” (Source: <https://www.nationalww2museum.org/war/articles/battle-of-wake-island-1941>)

What was the outcome for Devereux?

Fold3 website has photos and documents relating to Devereux. The document on the left details the capture of Wake and on right, he writes a letter of inspiration from a Japanese POW camp in China to his son . . . He survived the war, but so many others were not that fortunate.

The surrender was made at about 0830 and it took about two hours to notify all the isolated groups on Wake which were still continuing resistance. Major Devereux, escorted by Japanese, was taken by boat to Wilkes and the surrender was completed at about 1400.

Upon receipt of the report that a landing was being made, I was instructed by the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, to keep him informed as to the progress of the engagement. Shortly after the report of the approaching enemy I sent a dispatch in plain to the submarine which I thought was still present, notifying him of the attack. CincPac intercepted this and informed me "No friendly vessels are in your vicinity." I sent several dispatches to CincPac, the last at about 0630 reporting the grounded destroyers and the approach of several more combatant vessels and transports. After daylight the radio could no longer be used as Japanese planes were patrolling the island, bombing and strafing all localities showing signs of life. The antenna for the transmitter was of the mast type and to erect it in sight of the planes would have been suicidal.

When the decision to surrender was made, all codes, ciphers and other confidential matter were ordered destroyed.

A summary of Japanese material losses in the subduing of Wake Island appear to be by conservative estimate:

- 3 destroyers
- 1 light cruiser
- 1 submarine
- 8 twin-engined bombers
- 3 carrier-based fighters
- 1 four-engined seaplane

Considerably greater claims have been made by various witnesses but have not yet been confirmed.

No information is available by which an estimate of enemy personnel losses can be made.

The Marine Fighting Plane Squadron with a strength of 89 had 33 killed and 16 wounded in action. Of two naval enlisted men who worked with the squadron, one was wounded twice. The Commanding Officer, Major Putnam, was twice wounded.

No final data is at hand to make possible a summary of casualties to members of the other naval activities. It is desired that an additional report be made later when reports from all subordinates have been received. So far (January 3, 1946) only that of Major Putnam has come to hand.

On the basis of present information, it is desired to cite the following for eminent and conspicuous service: the entire personnel of Marine

Dear Paddy:

Our loss must have indeed been a shock to you; it was to me. We both loved her so much. I only wish that I could be with you but you are indeed fortunate to have your grand-parents to watch over you. I made a broadcast recording to you last fall. Do hope

In your mother's letter she said you were doing well in church and school. Keep up the good work. You will find both extremely necessary in later life.

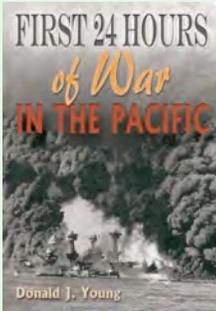

Your mother wrote that you were "throwing your weight around" the post on account of the Wake Island Marines. They did quite well and I am proud of them but remember that it just so happened that we were there. Anyone else would have done the same. You must remember that the work done behind the lines is often more vital than that at the front.

Be sure and write everyone saying you have heard from me and give them my love.

Your affectionate father,
Daddy

Devereux was a major stationed on Wake Island when the Japanese attacked. When Devereux was asked if he wanted anything he replied with the now historic phrase: "Send us more Japs!"

Fall of American Outpost: Guam & Wake Island . . . This is one of a series of lectures/presentations about the war in the Southwest Pacific Theater with some attention to the threat to Australia.

The lecture will include discussion of these targets : 1) Pearl Harbor 2) Malaya 3) Singapore 4) Hong Kong 5) Philippines 6) Wake 7) Midway 8) SS Cynthia Olson torpedoed on the high seas)

Suggested reading for this region of the Pacific War: Ian W. Toll, Pacific Crucible: War at Sea in the Pacific, 1941-1942 (editor's note) This book examines in depth Nimitz and Halsey's operations and strategies and is very readable. Fascinating reading and a good preparation for the first and subsequent lectures in this series. Volume 1 takes the reader through the US victory at the battle for Midway Island.

Historian/author and WWII Round Table John Shively member presented the first in a series of GoTo webinar lectures for this winter and coming spring. “I have visited nearly every island battlefield in the Pacific and am now a battlefield tour guide with Valor Tours. I have guided tours to Okinawa, Tarawa, Pearl Harbor, and Guadalcanal. Questions? Wish to sign up for future programs? LAST POST FOR LATE WW2 RT MEMBER JAMES O'DONNELL'S WIFE , MARY

Indianapolis - Mary Alice (Gearns) O'Donnell, 99, of Indianapolis passed away January 16, 2021 at Franciscan Hospice House after living 8 years at St Paul Hermitage. Mary Alice was born in Indianapolis September 18, 1921 to her parents, the late Jim and Mary (Kennedy) Gearns. She was predeceased by brothers Charles, William and Robert and sister Elizabeth "Betty". She was also predeceased by her husband James "Jimmy" O'Donnell, the sole resident survivor of the USS Indianapolis and retired Indianapolis Firefighter. Jimmy and Mary Alice had just celebrated their 70th Wedding Anniversary prior to his death. Many of our members may remember hearing Jimmy's story of survival from the sinking of the USS Indianapolis in July 1945.

Title	Description	Number
WWII Sites in the United States	This book identifies and locates the hundreds of military facilities that existed in the United States during World War II - Army camps, airfields, naval bases, prisoner of war camps, ordnance plants, ports of embarkation, military hospitals, buildings and homes related to the war effort or any famous individuals of the wartime era, and much more. At many of these sites, memorials have been erected which are not listed in this book because they are so numerous. These memorials can be located by utilizing the companion book - World War II Museums, Memorials, and Historic Displays in the United States.
Casablanca	The classic movie "Casablanca" is a WW II story, made during WW II for WW II audiences and is loaded with very accurate WW II history which is fully explained in this book. You will learn the actual calendar days of the events in Casablanca and Paris - why Rick couldn't return to America - why there were Germans in Casablanca - and whether or not there was an actual document known as a "letter of transit." You will learn such things as how Rick ran guns to Ethiopia - what he did while he was fighting for the loyalist in Spain - and what mysterious activities he was up to in Paris. The reader is also informed as to why it was difficult for refugees to get out of Casablanca - why they wanted to go to Lisbon - who the "devil" was in Bulgaria that the Bulgarian woman spoke of - what were the Bulgarian couple's chances of reaching America - the significance of Ilsa and Berger being Norwegians - and the differences between the Vichy French and the Free French... and more.
If Hitler Had Won	This is an account of the actual plans Hitler made for the time when the Axis powers would be victorious... The postwar fates planned for the United States, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and Italy are also detailed. Maps of Europe, the Mediterranean area, and parts of Africa project this altered world, circa 1950. Illustrations included in the thought-provoking book feature Hitler's retirement home, designs for future German jet aircraft, the 400,000-seat Nuremberg Stadium, a plan to rebuild Berlin as "Germania," farmhouse designs for the new German settlers in the east, the Me264 "Amerika Bomber," a "Strength Through Joy" advertisement for the Volkswagen and more...
1919 The First Year of WWII	'The First Year of World War II, 1919', puts forward the idea that the events of 1919 were so significant that they in fact saw the beginning of World War Two, such a short while after the end of the First World War. This book explores the events that took place and discusses their impact. Key events such as Hitler and Mussolini entering politics, the Bolsheviks beginning to win the Russian Civil War and so Stalin gaining power and of course the effect of the severe Treaty of Versailles on an already damaged Germany are covered in detail. But it was not only Europe that saw changes. America entered isolation and prohibition and Japan became a major threat in the far east. All these events undoubtedly had an effect on the war and in turn on the world, but were they the start of the war?
The Axis: Hitler's Allies	Here are the BAD GUYS of World War II. Fifteen nations comprised the Axis Alliance & 14 of them declared war on the US. All of them declared war on the British Empire. This book, written from the Axis perspective, records their often stormy and sometime treacherous relationships. Here is a mountain of detailed information on the Axis Alliance found in no other book on this subject.

LOCAL AUTHOR'S NEW RELEASE FEATURES MORE WWII VETERANS' STORIES

Contact: Kayleen Reusser at kjreusser@adamswells.com or 260-273-9264

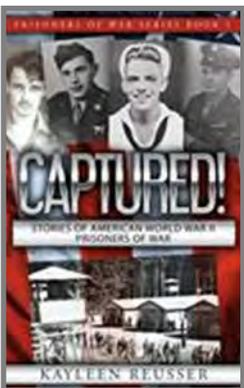

Bluffton, Ind.—Indiana author Kayleen Reusser, known for writing several series of books featuring stories centered on World War II, has just completed a second book in fall 2020. This title, We Defended Freedom: Adventures of World War II Veterans, is Book 4 in her WWII Legacies series. It includes the stories of 28 World War II veterans from various branches of the U.S. military. All but two of the veterans hail Indiana. The exceptions are a veteran from Virginia along with Woody Williams, the only living World War II Medal of Honor recipient from Kentucky.

Reusser's stories include an officer of an aircraft carrier, an Army soldier at D-Day, a sailor who was stationed at Cuba, and a pilot who flew in the South Pacific. Among the compilation are stories of two women who served in the Army as a WAC (Women's Army Corps) and in the WAVES (Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service).

"It is exciting to present another group of World War II veteran stories to readers," said Reusser. "This collection of four books tells about the war, not from the generals' point of view, but from the viewpoint of the soldier, sailor and airman. They are how we won the war and why we have our freedoms today. My goal is to present stories in an exciting and factual way that will help readers appreciate what our veterans have done for us." Reusser has written books in other series: Witnesses of War; World War II Insider.

Since 2014, Reusser has published books of stories of America's oldest military veterans. "Documenting how past wars have helped to shape the world of today has been a rewarding challenge," she said. She releases new titles near Veteran's Day to commemorate and show appreciation for that group of citizens.

Reusser is the wife and mother of U.S. Air Force airmen. "I firmly believe we need to teach people about patriotism because if we don't reinforce its importance, we could be in a position to lose it," she said. "My method of presenting it is through sharing veterans' stories. My books are part of a continued effort to preserve our national military heritage."

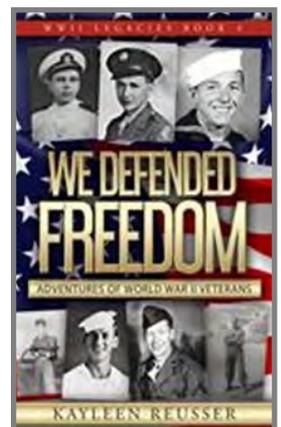

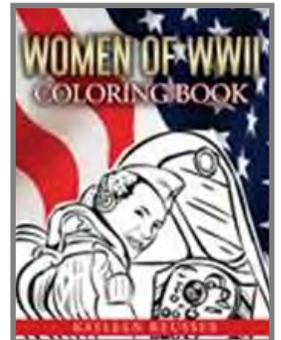

Reusser recently completed a book of Prisoner of War stories entitled Captured! Stories of American WWII Prisoners of War (Prisoner of War series). [JUST RELEASED 11/20]

She has also finished a coloring book featuring women from World War II whom she has interviewed. "The coloring book could encourage people of all ages to become familiar with women who volunteered to serve in the military when much of society disapproved," she said. "I admire them for their pluck."

Reusser has presented many talks about her interviews with 260 World War II veterans. She is booking virtual events for 2021. To learn more about these presentations, and/or to schedule Reusser for a speaking event, visit her website
