An Inexpensive Answer To An Expensive Problem

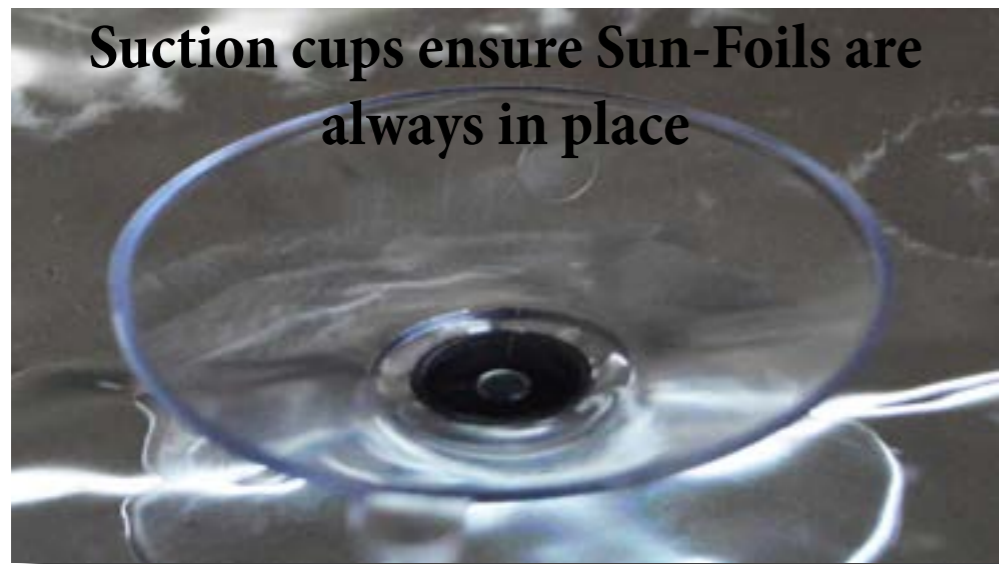

Multi-million dollar aircraft are unprotected and exposed to damaging heat and sunlight, on hot tarmacs every day. This problem can be eliminated completely for as little as $325.00

Avionics can experience damage or failure above 130° degrees. A cockpit can easily reach 160° to 180° degrees. Sun-Foil sunscreens will keep temperatures below 125° degrees, even in extreme conditions. Testing in extreme conditions confirmed at least a 66° degree temperature reduction with Sun-Foil Aircraft Sunscreens installed.

2 layer military grade bubble insulation

Suction cups ensure Sun-Foils are always in place

Sun-Foil Exclusive added layer of Gold or Silver Mylar laminate

Sun-Foil was born from a need for a better product.

In the late 1980's, a pilot and aircraft owner frustrated with not being able to find an acceptable sunscreen to protect his aircraft, decided to design his own screens.

Being a perfectionist, his screens fit perfectly, looked fantastic, and performed flawlessly.

Sun-Foil was formed...

Julie, who joined the company in its infancy, later purchased it. She and her husband Don have run it as a family business ever since.

Here's What Sets Sun-Foil Apart...

- 2 layer military grade bubble insulation
 - Double stitched protective border
- Strategically placed suction cups that work with a friction fit to ensure Sun-Foils always stay in place
- Exclusive added layer of gold or silver Mylar
- Unparalleled quality control and customer service with company owners involved every step of the way
