

Sundae Driver

Editorial by Jamie Toth

New to the 54 Green Acres lineup this year is Sundae Driver. Sundae Driver was created by Cannarado in 2018 using Fruity Pebble OG and Grape Pie genetics and Jungle Boyz performed the reproduction. Sundae Driver is so prized that a pack of seeds netted $2,000 in an auction. We were introduced to Sundae Driver as part of the 2019 Grow Off. The Grow Off is a cannabis cultivation competition in which grows are all given the same genetics, and results are determined by testing. As part of that competition, we grew Sundae Driver here at 54 Green Acres with our Certified Kind organic processes. We were so pleased with how she grew in addition to the final product so we gave her a coveted spot in our 2020 lineup.

Sundae Driver has a pleasing terpene mix that is, indeed, reminiscent of ice cream. Creamy woody and chocolate notes are complimented by light fruity and floral flavors. She is a consistent vape across all of the temperatures – the flavors are in a consistently woody, fruity mix. The aftertaste is creamy and fruity and the flavors play well together. This cannabis performs well in all sorts of vaporizers. It's not overly overwhelming with any particular terpene which makes it a good fit to carry with your small battery vaporizers, as it can deliver a well-balanced flavor even late into a higher temperature setting. Rarely does Sundae Driver hit anything but creamy smooth.

Sundae Driver is a 50/ 50 hybrid, and its effects reflect that mix – it has the talkative creativity of a sativa with a slight indica body buzz. Color and sounds both gain intensity making Sundae Driver a great companion to playing or listening to music. Since it's nearly free of couch lock, it's also a perfect companion to a leisurely walk. It's a chatty, upbeat high that still allows clarity and focus, with a nice mellow feel. Caution is advised, as it's a fine line between Sundae Driver's mood-boosting effects and anxiety.

All of our cannabis is sungrown on our Southern Oregon organic farm. It's watered from Sucker Creek, a tributary of the Illinois. We've owned water rights for the land since 1882. 54 Green Acres is a Certified Kind farm, which means that all of our soil, nutrients, and processes are organic and as gentle to the Earth as possible. We are re-certified every year to ensure our compliance with the rigorous Certified Kind standards that are focused on earth-friendly farming that is as focused on how cannabis is grown, in addition to its yield. Certified Kind farms are focused on being Kind to Earth, and Kind to Life.

At 54 Green Acres, we are committed to demonstrating how purely organic processes produce amazing results. We demonstrate that in all that we do, which includes raising rabbits, growing apples for cider, and beekeeping.
