Garden Island Sobriety

'Step Two'

“Came to believe that a power greater than ourselves could restore us to sanity.”

He said:

He Said without hesitation, “My name is blank and I am an alcoholic” (speaking of myself, “He”, as a third party).

I have to say that after a few consecutive weeks of showing up on a daily basis, getting used to the bright glaring fluorescent lighting, and these no longer irritatingly happy people, I find myself sipping the coffee and cracking a smile. People know my name and say hello and how nice it is to see me. Do they really mean it? I have no choice at this point to have doubt, but maybe just a little. Some folks even tell me how good I'm looking and that feels really nice. What could they want from me I say to myself? Why are they so nice? The voices, OMG the voices...I am feeling better! I do see the difference in the mirror. That is when I get the nerve to actually look at the man in the mirror, something which I've avoided and or forgotten to do for a very long time.

So yes, the fog is settling. My view and perception of things are clearing up a bit. Oh I should also mention, when it comes to the rooms, and I say the rooms because they've become a huge part of my daily living, yes the rooms feel larger, the people seem more familiar and I find that I can still hear what was said in these rooms for hours after I've gone home. Sometimes into the late night, much thanks to the coffee.

My employer and co workers are showing interest in what's going on with me? Finally for the good! It's too early to tell, too early to say, because at this point I myself am still questioning it. All I can say is I've been following the suggestions and I 'keep going back.' I definitely know that I'm powerless and unable to manage my own life. And lately I've been hearing something else, which at this point I have no reason to question, because they've been right up till now. I

She said:

There is a Higher Power working in all of our lives, whether we understand it or not. There are many names that are associated to this power yet it actually doesn't matter what word we use to describe it. This is a sticky point for many, as it was for me, when I heard other alcoholics use the word God. When I brought this up it was suggested that I see the word God as an acronym - “Good Orderly Direction” or a “Group of Drunks”. It was also suggested that I find a word that was comfortable for me because again, it's not about the name that we give it, it's about the fact that it exists and that only It can restore sanity.

I believe the 12 Steps, along with much of the literature, was divinely inspired. I also believe that everything is worded very specifically and that there are no mistakes. That is how I learned that “came to believe” is a process. It became imperative for my recovery that I be willing for the process of “coming to believe” to unfold. I needed to let go of the old notion that I was the one who could restore ‘me’ to sanity. I had to be willing to let go of control, knowing that I had already tried again and again to orchestrate my life. I already knew where that brought me.

Would I be able to get past that word that brought up memories of my childhood religion's version of a guilty condemning God? Yes. Why? I was completely over living the way that I was living. This was a spiritual program and something had to change (me). That meant that I could create my Higher Power to be whatever I needed it to be and I could let go of all the old false ideas and beliefs. Spirituality is the absolute foundation of my recovery and as I looked around the world I began to see God everywhere; If God was

He Said: (cont.) hear it and I'm eager to say that tonight I am "there." Where is there you ask? What I know for sure is that , I came, I came to and I'll be darned but I can actually say that I've come to believe...That a power greater than myself could restore me to sanity. And for that, for now, I want more. I'll keep coming back, and besides the people really are nice.

With love and service,
~ Mahalo, Lance L.

She Said: (cont.) everywhere then that must include me.

This step became a turning point in my life because I no longer had to walk this path alone. In fact, I had never been alone. The disease of alcoholism created the illusion of isolation yet this Higher Power had ALWAYS been in and around me. This awareness dawned on me over time, like the light of the morning, and I came to believe that a power greater than myself could indeed restore me to sanity. The more I believed, the more evidence of this truth showed up in my life as it changed day by day, week by week, year by year.

Expect A Miracle

♥ At Salt Pond Pavilion

February 14, 2:00 pm to 9:00 pm

The Waimea Canyon Group is full of gratitude for the support and growth we have seen in the past year!

We currently host 3 meetings at KVMH (Kauai Veterans Memorial Hospital, Waimea) on Mondays, Thursdays, and Fridays in the Conference Room, as well as Tuesdays at the UCC Church in Hanapepe, across from the library. All meetings begin at 5:30pm. Come check us out on the Westside!

Because of our love for AA, the Waimea Canyon Group has teamed up with HICYPAA (and with the support of Intergroup) to put on a Valentine's Day gathering on Saturday, February 14th, at Salt Pond Main Pavilion from 2pm – 9pm. There will be:

- ✿ An AA Meeting at 3pm with Hawaiian music
- ✿ Dancing to our HICYPAA DJ, Games, & Fellowship
- ✿ A BBQ and Potluck
- ✿ A Raffle to help support HICYPAA, as they prepare to host the conference this year on Kaua'i.

For more information, please contact Corina or Shoshanah through the AA Hotline at 245-6677.

Kokua is always appreciated!

January in Our History:-

Jan. 1914: Ebby T. took his first drink of alcohol, 19 years old at the Hotel Ten-Eyck, Albany, New York. He will become Bill W.'s one and only sponsor.

Jan., 1928: Ralph Pfau (Father John Doe) has his first total breakdown due to alcoholism. He will have a total of four before he comes into A.A. in 1943.

Jan. 1933: Henrietta Seiberling, distressed over family problems, separated from her husband Fred and moves into their estate gate house to raise their 3 children. On this date she attended her first Oxford Group meeting in Akron, Ohio, and joined. If she had not joined the Oxford Group our two co-founders never would have met. There would be no A.A.

Jan. 8, 1939: Richmond Walker, author of "The 24 Hrs A Day Book" joined the Oxford Group. 50 yrs old and 30 years of heavy un-controlled drinking under his belt, Richmond will join A.A. in Boston two years later. He never had another drink.

Jan 23, 1943: The 'Star Newspaper' in Washington D.C. reports that 300 members attend the capital's first A.A. banquet.

Jan. 1949: Readership expands to Canada and Europe as The Grapevine becomes known worldwide.

Jan. 9, 1952: Al-Anon Headquarters established in New York City.

Jan. 14, 1966: "The National Center For The Prevention and Control of Alcoholism" is created within "The National Institute On Mental Health."

Jan. 24, 1971, 11:30 pm: our co-founder Bill W. moved on up to the 'Big Meeting' at the Miami Heart Institute, Miami, Florida.

Jan. 1979: The two millionth copy of the Big Book presented to H.E.W. Secretary Joseph Califano in a ceremony at G.S.O.

 Tradition Two

For our group purpose there is but one ultimate authority – a loving God as He may express Himself in our group conscience. Our leaders are but trusted servants; they do not govern.

Who is actually in charge in Alcoholics Anonymous? Most people who look at our Society ask this question. Every newcomer or visitor to an AA meeting often wonders this also. Most people think it is the person "running the meeting". Is it the person doing service work or the long-timer in the meeting? For quite a few months, I too had no idea who was in charge, even though it is read at every meeting as we "pass the hat", but I couldn't grasp the concept yet of a Loving God.

My relationship with Tradition Two comes from my own experience with it in its practical application by the group. Imagine two people getting into a fight in a meeting of AA, I mean the kind where there is furniture moving involved and people are yelling and trying to break it up, but the combatants are determined to beat the hell out of each other and refuse to back down. A bit dramatic you might think. What should be done about this kind of behavior? How do we as a group in recovery handle these kinds of things? This is where the group conscience comes into play, for the welfare of the group. So what would a loving God as expressed in the group conscience do about a situation like this? Think about it carefully, before you rush to answer. Remember that we are not just dealing with the fight, but we are also dealing with a Life and Death matter!

I will share with you my Experience, Strength and Hope. It was me who was one of the furniture movers in the example. I was asked by the group to refrain from attending that particular meeting, but I was free to attend other meetings in the same building, as long as I was willing to behave myself. The group Conscience put me in time-out, and because I was willing to go to any lengths for victory over alcohol, I abided by the decision of the group. Eventually amends were made on both sides of the conflict and we were both free to attend the meeting together and even sit side by side and laugh about it along with everyone else. The Traditions are indispensable; they are the glue which holds our Fellowship together. Without them, we would most likely implode or disappear from the scene, such as the Washingtonian Group and the Oxford Group.
