

Gathering at His Feet is changing. Rachael and I almost cancelled our webpage account and it literally came down to the very last minute for renewal (and I mean very last minute!!!) We want to be flexible in Him and after prayerfully seeking Him, we decided to renew our website for another year, but we know changes must be made for us continue.

We love how God has used this page to touch and change hearts, and we are blessed to be a small part of your lives. Change is necessary for us all to grow! The Lord reminded me of something He spoke to me back in 2000, "Whatever the changes are, I do not change." Here at GAHF we desire to always be ready for changes because it's all about Him. He is the Author of our lives and changes are a part of that when we allow Him to direct us. Since that day in 2000 (and to this day), I am continually learning whatever the change is, He does not change. I like you, try to adjust with each change as it happens.

Remember, the definition of change? Change means the future course of (something) is different from what it is or from what it would be if left alone. Wow...if let alone! We do not want to leave our webpage alone. We want God to be the source of ALL we do here. We want to expand under His direction and guidance. As I prepared to share the changes with you for our website, I really felt like this change is NOT just about our website. He wants to change some things in your personal life too. He is calling you to let Him expand within you in greater measure and within your life. God desires to change these things within you so He can expand within you in greater measure, but first, changes must happen in order for Him to expand in you & around you. You know change is coming in your life. When you live a life that is directed by Him that means you must be flexible with each change in order for Him to continually expand within you.

Look what expanding means:

- become or making larger or more extensive.
- undergoing continuous change

I love this! Expanding and change are two words that work seemingly go together. So I ask you? Is it a coincidence? I think NOT!

Any goal in your life should always be about Him becoming greater and greater within you, while you become less and less. You can only do this as you yield control of your life to Him during the changes and you do this by trusting in Him to help you through the change.

To live a Christ-directed life always requires faith in order for you to grow. I love the Word of God always shows the way to live a life by faith. You must move forward. You must press forward with faith during times of change. That's when you will see His sovereign hand at work in you and through you.

God's plan for your life requires that you know Him and trust Him in all things, at all times, regardless of what you are experiencing with the changes in the natural. By trusting Him, you this means you are completely committed to knowing Him. By trusting Him you are saying that you believe He will work all things out for your good. Just as seasons change, so do the seasons of your life.

We are not sure exactly what the changes will look like for us here at GAHF, we only know we need to make them. The current plan (which is always subject to change) is to be posting devotionals three times a week (Monday-Wednesday-Friday). Over the years we have grown to 17,000 viewers strong and now we are asking you our viewers to help us grow. How? By simply sharing our posts with others on Tuesday and Thursdays. We want to see our viewer base double by next June when we are up for renewal again.

Thanks so much! And as always, we love and pray for you!

Blessings,
Gina & Rachael
