

Backyard wars

Have you ever had a bad neighbor?! Have you ever been a bad neighbor?! If you answer yes, then this show is for you! Backyard Wars, the newest reality show concept. Six households, with bordering identical backyards, wage messy war with slime-filled balloons launched with a variety of launchers. The six households, each consisting of four members, compete in individual challenges to score points. At the show's conclusion, the two top scoring teams redeem their points for both offensive and defensive items. The remaining teams redeem their points for defensive items before slimy war is waged above and around the bordering backyards.

The same six households return for a series of six shows, culminating in a winner being determined by the remaining value of the households' identical yards and houses. A possible addition would be a winnable prize of a "home makeover" at mid-series, that must be redeemed immediately and would change the direction of the game. The individual challenges would be a consistent variety of a sports challenge, a grocery store challenge, a hobbyist challenge and the always fun water challenge.

I have a scripted or sample pilot available upon request.