

Almendinger Family 1917

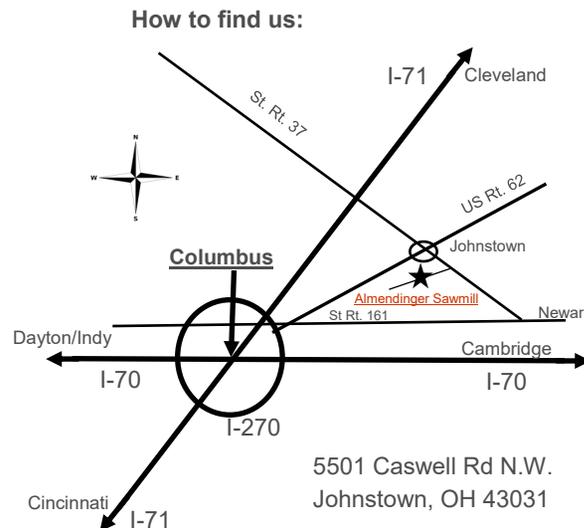

The Almendinger family has a tradition of sawmilling and logging in Ohio that dates back to 1917. Joe Almendinger started the Almendinger Sawmill on his farm Southeast of Johnstown in 1974, specializing in walnut. Over 45 years later The Almendinger Sawmill LLC is a very successful family owned wood products operation. Today, Joe and his son Erich run the business. The knowledge and skills have been passed down through the generations from Joe's grandfather and father. Today, the company continues to produce high quality hardwood lumber.

The Almendinger Sawmill is an environmentally friendly company. Once a log arrives at our sawmill nothing is wasted. From the initial debarking of the logs to the final rough sawn lumber every product and by-product is used. The bark is reground into landscaping mulch, the sawdust is used for animal bedding, the scraps and cutoffs are chipped and any logs that are not lumber quality are split into firewood.
