By Rabbi Ze’ev Harari, Temple Beth Shalom

On Wednesday April 12, as I was getting ready to leave the house, my cell phone rang. When I answered, an FBI agent introduced himself to me and told me something that, at that point, was not public knowledge: they caught two teenagers (19), a man and his girlfriend, both residents of Ocala. The two of them stole guns and ammunition, and for that they were arrested. The FBI took their computers to check them and found that they Googled Jewish schools in Ocala. Temple Beth Shalom is the only Jewish congregation that has a school and our name comes up first if you Google anything in Ocala. The agent told me that we may have been a possible target, and to be ready to respond to questions from the media.

On Thursday, April 13, as the information sunk into my mind, I asked myself how can we respond to this. After some thought, I decided to organize an Interfaith Erev Shabbat service at Temple Beth Shalom. I contacted a Christian pastor, Dr. Harold McSwaine, pastor of First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ, (Rev. Hal McSwaine and his wife Annette Alber (at center left). Photo courtesy of The Ocala Star Banner.

bawi, the spiritual leader of the Islamic Center in Ocala, and he, too, agreed to attend our service and to speak for peace and harmony in our city.

On Friday night, April 14, our sanctuary was overflowing with Jews, Christians and Muslims coming together as a community to make a statement. First, we held our Shabbat service as planned. I explained the service more than I usually do, so that our guests could understand. Then we spoke: I spoke first, then I invited Pastor Dr. McSwaine to speak, and the Imam spoke last.

I stressed that all three religions yearn for peace. We, Jews, greet each other saying Shalom Aleichem. Muslims say A-Salam Aleikum, and Christians greet saying “Peace Be With You.” Then we sang Shalom Aleichem to Debbie Friedman’s tune.

In his message Dr. McSwaine said, “Violence, no matter what religious clothes it wears, remains violence”.

Audrey the violinist played the theme of “Schindler’s List” on her violin. This was in memory of Oskar Schindler, who saved 1,100 Jews in the Holocaust.

Imam Zafer Sabawi said: “Ugly is ugly no matter what it is. May Allah not bring a day in Ocala that anyone is harmed.

Then we sang We Shall Overcome, as we all stood and held hands together. This, to me, was a moment of G-d! The coming together of all three Abrahamic faiths was very powerful and healing.

We needed this togetherness to make a statement that in spite of all the religious differences between us, we all want to live and let live in peace and harmony.
Together we can do extraordinary things!

Annual Campaign Title

By Virginia Briessette Hirshik,
JCNCF President & CEO

From Rosh HaShanah to Shavuot, the Jewish calendar provides numerous opportunities for gathering. For those of us who work in Jewish community programming, the ebb and flow of our activity is directly linked to the cycle of the holidays. As we wrap up the JCNCF program year with our Holocaust memorial and Israel Day celebration, we breathe a small sigh of relief that our public community events are over for a couple of months. That doesn’t mean that we go on vacation until September, though. You can be sure that on May 1, we will be back in the office planning events, speakers and community gatherings for 5778 (2017/2018).

We do have one piece of unfinished business from this year to attend to, and that is making our Annual Campaign goal for 2016/2017. As of the publication deadline of this Chronicle, JCNCF’s Annual Campaign was just over $142,500, which is 85% of our goal of $165,000. Your donations to the Annual Campaign helped fund our community speakers and events, Shabbatons, and holiday programs, like Yom HaShoah and Yom HaAtzmaut. Among our projects worldwide, your dollars also helped fund the Joint Distribution Committee’s recent Passover outreach project that delivered 50,000 boxes of matzoh to needy Jews throughout the former Soviet Union, as well as offering Seder meals, volunteer opportunities, cooking workshops and cultural performances. Turn to pages six and seven and take a look at some of this spring’s events.

Thank you to all whom have already given to this year’s fund. We are deeply grateful for your support of our mission through your gifts to the Annual Campaign. If you receive The Chronicle monthly, if you attended one or all of the film festival screenings, if you care about Jewish life in our community, please consider making a donation now. We are so close to our campaign goal and you can help us make it there. Thank you for your generous support!

For your convenience, a pledge card is located at the top of the facing page.
JCNCF Updates Local Grants Process

By Sharon Hirshik, Chair
Grants Committee

The JCNCF Board and Grants Committee are very excited about our new grants program. Starting in fall 2017, JCNCF will begin offering two types of grants. Like grants we have awarded in the past, there will be three “Chai Grants” of up to $1,800 awarded each year. Furthermore, we have added three monthly “Micro Grants” of $180 each ($540 per month) from September through June of each year.

As we have always required, all (both Chai and Micro) grant applications for projects and activities must continue to support the mission of JCNCF: To operate and engage in philanthropic, cultural, charitable, educational and religious activities that contribute to the welfare of the Jewish community of North Central Florida and other Jewish communities located throughout the world. Additionally, the new grants should reflect one of the three areas specified in this passage from Pirkei Avot “The world is built on three things:

- Torah (Jewish law & learning)
- Avodah (service to G-d & Jewish community)
- Gemilut Chassidim (acts of loving kindness)”

Chai Grants ($1,800) must be submitted to JCNCF by June 30th and Micro Grants submissions will begin on August 1st. Please see the JCNCF website (www.JCNCF.org) for all the guidelines, requirements and documents for the new grants program. The Grants Committee looks forward to working with you. For more information or specific questions, please contact the JCNCF office at, office@jcncf.org or (352) 371-3846.

I am taking a break from the usual format of the monthly “Israel in Brief” column to recognize that 2017 sees two important anniversaries for Israel and the Jewish people: the 100th anniversary of the Balfour Declaration, which was transmitted on November 2, 1917, and the 70th anniversary of the United Nations General Assembly vote on Resolution 181 on November 29, 1947, establishing two states in Palestine, one Jewish and one Arab.

The Balfour declaration was sent by Arthur Balfour, Foreign Secretary for the British government, to Lord Walter Rothschild, a leading Zionist and the acknowledged head of the British Jewish community. Balfour’s letter is shown at right.

Interesting Notes on the Balfour Declaration:
• Although he favored the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine, and had input into the wording of the declaration itself, Balfour did not write the declaration. The wording came from a number of sources, including British Zionists, but was finally compiled and approved by the five-person War Cabinet, of which Balfour was not a member. The head of the War Cabinet was Prime Minister David Lloyd George, so it might more properly have been called “The Lloyd George Declaration.”

• Only one of the five members of War Cabinet had strong misgivings about the declaration, although in the end he voted for it. That member believed it was unfair to stick the Jews with such a desolate land that had been maltreated for centuries by its Arab inhabitants.

• Palestine was a spoil of war in 1917 as the World War I allies, Britain, France, Russia and the United States were about to win their war against Germany and its ally, Turkey. Britain believed a Jewish Palestine could better defend the Suez Canal – England’s lifeline for trade to India and other Asian nations – than an Arab Palestine.

• There were 44,765 square miles in the original Palestine Mandate. By 1922, successor governments to those of Lloyd George had lopped 78% of it off and given it to a Saudi-Arabian prince named Abdullah. Today that country is called the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan.

Interesting Notes on the UN Partition Plan Vote:
• The Partition Plan resolution required a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly for approval. The vote was 33 For, 13 Against, 10 Abstaining and 1 Absent. Fortunately for Israel, there were only eight nations in the UN in 1947 with Moslem majorities (all voted against partition). Today, 57 of the 193 member nations of the UN have Moslem majority populations.

• Arabs contend that the land now occupied by Israel was stolen from them. According to British government statistics, 8.6% of the land in the area now known as Israel was owned by Jews in 1947; 3.3% was owned by Arabs who remained in Israel; 16.5% was owned by Arabs who left the country, and more than 70% of the land was owned by the government. These public lands passed to the ownership of Israel. The public lands included most of the Negev.

• Because of the Partition Plan and resulting wars instigated by Palestinian Arabs and surrounding Arab nations, an estimated 530,000 to 590,000 Palestinian Arabs became refugees, primarily going to Gaza, the West Bank, Jordan and Lebanon. Some 140,000 remained in Israel their descendants now represent 20% of the Israeli population. Because of the Partition Plan and those same wars, some 794,000 Jews fled or were expelled from surrounding Arab nations, almost all of which now have zero Jewish population today. Some 600,000 of these exiled Jews became citizens of Israel.

B’nai Israel Day School to Expand in Fall 2017

By Debby Kinman-Ford, Director
B’nai Israel Community Day School

It’s here, it’s finally happening! Coming this August, the B’nai Israel Community Day School is opening an elementary school. For several years, the school has increased its enrollment and every year parents ask if the school will expand to open an elementary program. After multiple conversations about what the school would look like and what it’s philosophy would be, B’nai Israel thought the timing was perfect.

Over a decade ago, B’nai Israel had a thriving elementary school, but as the needs of the community shifted, more focus was directed toward the preschool program. Fast forward to 2017 and the current preschool families are now even more invested in the culture of the school that they began entertaining the idea of reopening the elementary program.

“Our staff is beyond thrilled. For months, we have been planning to create a vision of what a program for older children would look like and we can’t wait to see it come to fruition,” said Debby Kinman-Ford, the Day School Director. “To offer families a Jewish elementary school option in our community is very exciting. The Jewish day school experience is different and we are honored to add that to our repertoire of educational options.”

The school will be open to all members of the Gainesville community extending the philosophy of ‘all families and faiths welcome’ into its elementary school program. The children will have a daily Judaics class that will extend their knowledge of Torah, mitzvot and holidays taught jointly by Rabbi David Kaiman and Shauna Sikron, Chavaya Director. They will also have a full secular education with state-of-the-art technology, an in-depth gardening curriculum woven through their science class twice a week, and social studies taught with an emphasis on community responsibility and global citizenship. Children will take monthly field trips or entertain guest speakers on a variety of topics as well as customized language arts and math programs. They will also have physical education several times a week with group games such as kickball, soccer and tball as well as education on developing individualized activity plans incorporating yoga, stretching and mindfulness. Their physical education program will also include a fitness trail and Israeli dancing.

“We have many exciting plans in store for the elementary school that it is hard to mention them all,” Debby said. “We are invested in raising the next generation of citizens of the global community. Our attention is focused on providing a very well-rounded educational experience looking at the needs of each child.”

Limited space is available for the elementary school program. For more information, interested families should contact the Day School at 352-376-1508 ext. 110. The program will run from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. with free before-care available from 7:30 to 8 a.m. For an additional fee, an aftercare option will also be available from 3 to 5:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. on Fridays in observance of Shabbat).
Roslyn Levy (left) and Ilene Silverman (right) will be honored by the Girl Scouts of Gateway Council. Women Who Make a Difference recognizes the movers and shakers in the Gainesville area who positively impact and support their community. The award ceremony will be held at Hilton UF Conference Center, Thursday, Jun 1 at 11 am. Tickets: $75 each. A limited number of tickets are available on a first-come-first-served basis, and the event is expected to be sold out! To order tickets, contact Kari Franceschina at (904) 388-9037 or kfranceschina@girlscouts-gateway.org.
