Patricia's husband Ron, who lives with Alzheimer's, can no longer take care of himself and has been placed in a Memory Care unit at a local senior facility. The family deals with this difficult transition and Ron's continual decline.

Just as a new normal seems to have been established, the family discovers that Ron has begun an intimate relationship with another patient. While Stephanie and Hallie are shocked and hurt by their father's betrayal, Patricia has a much different reaction, due largely to a long-held family secret.
