

Executive Leadership Skills for Women

In corporate life, women are still are judged every day on how we look, speak, and act. Learn to adapt your image and approach to make the most of your opportunities.

Cindy Steiner, renowned international communications coach, and Dr. Marne Platt, founder of Fundamental Capabilities, are proud to offer three workshops to help you reach your career goals. Drawing on their combined 60 years of experience around the world, they have developed three workshops focusing on key steps in your working life. Join a small group of women and learn together in a friendly, open environment. Get the straight talk you need in a safe space.

Standing at the Front of the Room Specifically designed for women moving into senior executive roles, this workshop builds critical skills for the most senior levels of responsibility: speaking persuasively with the Board of Directors, external stakeholders, and the Media; crafting an executive image inside and outside the office, dealing with executive politics, and managing your own relationship with work and life, all set in an intimate workshop setting of no more than 12 women. Practice in front of the group and receive instant feedback, plus a private session with the moderators. The top of the mountain is a tough and lonely place; we'll help you be at your best. One full day session; $1950/participant.

New Leader Essentials Ready for your first managerial role? This workshop will help you communicate more effectively with direct reports, peers, and upper management. We'll explore negotiations and persuasion techniques, dealing with challenging situations and office politics, and how your professional image must evolve to meet the expectations of your new role. Practice tough discussions in this safe space and receive instant feedback. If you are ready to take the next step up the ladder, this module is for you! Maximum 16 women per full day session; $1300/participant.

The Subtle Rules of the Business World Ready for your first corporate role? Whether you're moving from academia, small business or time off into the world of big companies, there's a lot to learn. This workshop helps you understand corporate thinking, begin shaping your professional presence, hone your interviewing skills and more. Learn the basics before you dive into the corporate ocean! Maximum 25 women per full day session, $499/participant.
