On the way to Sun Studio.

Catching up with the slower ones.

We are most certainly at the right place.

Along the side of the building.

There were already a number of tourists inside, and then we “really filed it up.”

Chris Noel giving the camera a “once-over.”
She had been here many years before.

A smiling Holly Watts is resting her feet.

The "Million Dollar Quartet."

Jerry Lee Lewis is on the left, Carl Perkins is next to him, Johnny Cash is on the right and Elvis Presley is at the piano.

The walls were covered with memorabilia.

More photos and memorabilia.

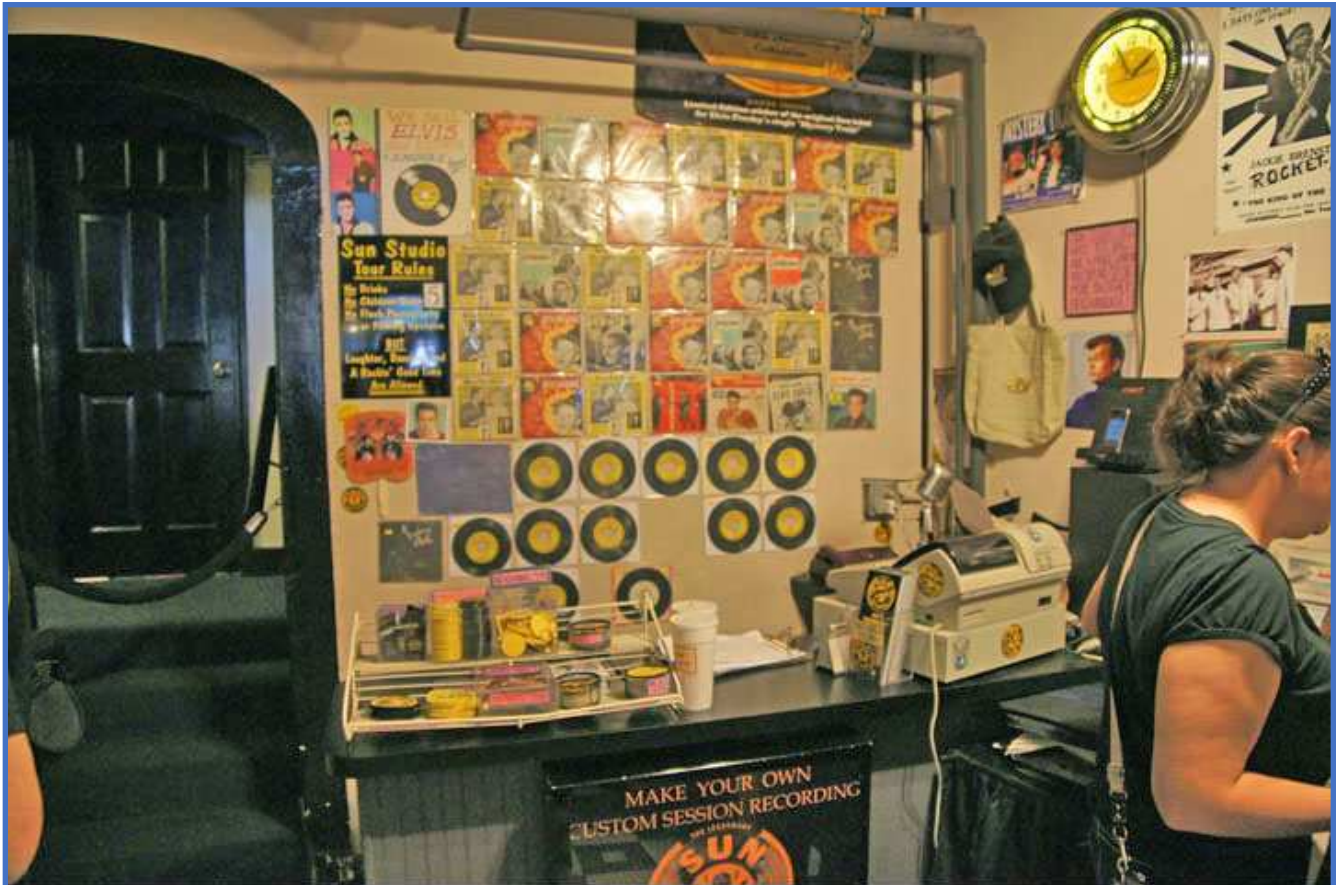

And, of course, Sun Studio hats and shirts were available.

The place was packed but Ken Kalish was able to grab a stool.

Records and record covers.

Floor to ceiling and wall to wall.

House rules--but there certainly wasn't enough room to dance.

Many of us found the stairs
a little difficult.

But the second floor was well worth the climb.

Many in the group had fond memories of this machine.

Lots of musical instruments and photos.

And, many other things.

There was almost more than one could take in.

Elvis Presley was featured over almost everyone else.

Elvis's High School Diploma, to include a misspelled middle name. It is really "Aaron."

A little hard to read but Elvis is #16 on the program. He is simply listed as "Guitarist" and, again, his name is misspelled as "Elvis Prestly."

Everyone is wandering and looking this way and that.

and interesting.

Jim White carefully going down the stairs.

In the studio.
This is a color photo--it is just that most of the photos on the wall are black and white.

A trap (or dance) drum set.

with a single rose at the top.

Doug Jennings, Jerry Nelson and Jim White--all in a row.

This time the spread out a little so that the “Million Dollar Quartet” is also visible.

The End
