If more than 8 teams are registered, additional preliminary rounds will be added, and the teams will be divided as evenly as possible across the preliminary rounds. Teams will be assigned to a preliminary round in numerical order by team number.
5. In the event of multiple preliminary rounds, only the teams competing in each preliminary round and their affiliated observers will be allowed in the competition room. Teams competing in subsequent preliminary rounds and their affiliated observers will remain outside the competition room until their round is called.
6. The 3 highest-scoring teams in each preliminary round will advance to the final round, which will be open to all observers.
7. Each preliminary round and the final round will consist of 40 questions: 24 academic knowledge questions; 12 current events questions; and 4 Leadership Handbook questions. A random sequence generator will be used to establish the order in which the questions will be read. The same questions, in the same order will be used for all preliminary rounds.

10. The moderator will read each question and will simultaneously display the question on the screen. Teams will have 5 seconds to respond by activating the buzzer. If no team responds within 5 seconds, the moderator will provide the correct answer and proceed to the next question.
11. The team which activates its buzzer first will be recognized to answer the question. One point will be awarded for the correct answer; ¼ point will be deducted for an incorrect answer. If the team answers the question before begin recognized by the moderator, its answer will be treated as an incorrect answer; provided, however, that if its answer was substantively accurate, the question will be discarded and no other team will be allowed to answer it.

12. A team may activate its buzzer before the moderator finishes reading the question; however, the moderator will stop reading the question at that point, the question will be eased from the screen, and the team must answer based on what has been read to that point.

13. Once a team is recognized by the moderator, its members will have 5 seconds to confer before the team must respond. Any team member may give the team’s answer. However, only one team member may give the team’s answer to a particular question, and only its first answer will be considered.

15. Only team members may challenge the moderator’s decision as to whether a question has been answered correctly. Any challenge must be raised before the next question is read. If a challenge is raised, the coach of the team making the challenge will be allowed to review the source document from which the question and answer were drawn.

16. If the moderator or an observer inadvertently answers a question, the question will be discarded, and the moderator will proceed to the next question.

17. Teams may not use notes or reference materials during competition rounds. Blank paper and pencils will be provided by contest staff and will be collected at the end of each round.

18. During a tiebreaker round, Rules 10-14 will apply; provided, however, that the penalty for an incorrect answer shall be one point. If the tiebreaker round does not resolve the tie, the teams’ average scores on the PDP test will be used to determine the higher-ranking team.
