DRIVING ON MARIJUANA CAN BE DANGEROUS

The cerebellum is the section of our brain that does most of the work on balance and coordination. When THC, the active ingredient in marijuana, finds its way into the cerebellum, it makes scoring a goal in soccer or hitting a home run pretty tough. THC also does a number on the basal ganglia, another part of the brain that's involved in movement control. These THC effects can spell disaster on the highway.

Research shows that drivers on marijuana have slow reaction times, impaired judgment, and problems responding to signals and sounds on the road. In one study of 150 reckless drivers, 33 tested positive for marijuana.
