“PEACE OF MIND” TEST

If a sick patient called you at 2 a.m., would you have to get out of bed and go to the office to review his/her chart, or could you quickly logon to your EMR at your office to locate the information?

If you had an appointment with an insurance representative tomorrow, could you quickly print a report by that carrier that could include the following detail for the last 12 months:

Patients
Total write-offs – Carrier
Total Paid – Patient
Demographics of Patients (including range)
Permanent Dx, etc.

Do you have a way to insure each new patient, on tomorrow's schedule, was confirmed for the appointment? Could you tell how it was done and many tries it took? Could you tell who did it?

Do you know how many charges for tests and procedures never make it to your fee slips? Would you like to have a fool-proof method that would ensure that every one was charged to the patient's account?

You attended a party and a physician mentions he charges several dollars more than your charge for spirometry. Could you quickly see how many spirometries you have done in the last six months? If you were to make that increase in your charges, how would that increase change your bottom line?

While reading a journal article, you become curious as to how many patients, age 5 to 7, with asthma you have?

Could you quickly locate those patients in your software system?

If a patient caught you in an exam room and said they were having difficulty getting a straight answer from your billing folks on all payments to their account, could you in less than a 10 keystrokes pull up a record showing the detail and assure them that you will look at it in more detail and have it corrected if appropriate as soon as you're finished.... But continue on with the medical part now?

Given your fees for service, do you know by each agreement how much you wrote off? Do you know it by each category of service? Do you know which agreements are most important to your revenue? Or which are generating the largest write offs?
