ITINERARY | DAY-BY-DAY

📍 Derry, Londonderry, Ireland

DAY 6: Wednesday, October 11

The Road to Peace

No visit to Ireland would be complete without a visit to Derry, Londonderry. Nationalists refer to the city as Derry, viewing the "London" prefix as a colonial imposition, while unionists view the prefix as an important part of their identity and have resisted attempts to officially rename the city as Derry.

Explore Derry and the Derry Walls which date back to the early part of the seventeenth century and have been a place of several sieges.

After lunch at a local pub or restaurant the group will visit the Museum of Free Derry. The main signature project of the Bloody Sunday Trust is the Museum of Free Derry, opened in 2007 to tell the story of what happened in the city during the period 1968 – 1972. Popularly known as 'Free Derry', the timeframe spans the civil rights era, Battle of the Bogside, Internment, Bloody Sunday, and Operation Motorman. Their story is told from the point of view of those who were most involved in and affected by these events – the Free Derry community. Situated in the heart of where these events took place, in a once-derelict housing block in Glenfada Park, the museum sits in the middle of what was the Bloody Sunday killing zone.

Return to Belfast where dinner is by individual arrangement.

DAY 7: Thursday, October 12

The Road to Peace

This morning the group will begin your continued exploration to learn about the conflicts with a walking tour of the Shankill and Falls Road. You'll meet with two different guides, both are former political prisoners, one from the republican community and the other one from the loyalist community. They offer their own personal perspective over the local history and the recent conflict.

Start at Divis Tower in the nationalist area of Falls Road where they will hear about the colonization of Ireland by England, and how the conflict started in 1969. Continue up the road to see the international wall and the Remembrance Garden commemorating local people who died during the conflict, if time allows, they will stop in the republican museum which gathered artefacts from Armagh jail and the H-Blocks. The next main stop is the famous Bobby Sands mural where the guide will explain the hunger strike of 1981.

Travel next to Lanark Way where you will meet the loyalist guide. He will show you the "peace line", a big wall dividing nationalist and loyalist/unionist areas. He will then take you to see Shankill Road to see the famous loyalist murals before you finish in the garden commemorating local soldiers who went to France to fight during WW1.

ITINERARY | DAY-BY-DAY

Enjoy lunch today with your two guides. 20 years ago, seeing a former republican prisoner shaking hands and chatting in a friendly manner with a loyalist ex-prisoner was completely unseen and unimaginable.

For the balance of the day the plan is to put together a panel discussion with participants like former members of the British army who served in Ireland during the conflict, former republican prisoners and loyalist representatives, MLAs, members of the police forces, politicians, and human rights lawyers like Pádraig Ó Muirigh. You will have an opportunity to have input on the topics for discussion which will be finalized to align with the delegation members' core interests.

Guest program: This afternoon accompanying guests will tour Hillsborough Castle and Gardens. Hillsborough Castle holds a unique place in the history of Northern Ireland. Since it was built in the 18th century the castle has gone from being a simple country house for the Hill family to becoming the official royal residence in Northern Ireland and the place where many of the formal and informal stages of the Peace Process happened.

Dinner is on your own this evening.

Although in opposite political parties they are friends and can share candidly their frank and honest opinions of the current and former political strife.
